Findings:

Before DOI, Subject maintained an active and publicly shared lifestyle that emphasized travel, family engagement, outdoor recreation, and community involvement. She was frequently photographed biking, hiking, and engaging in leisure activities with her husband and family in both urban and natural settings. Other posts include riding a bike in Bloomington, Indiana, seated outings with her husband, playful activities at a museum, and photos by public fountains. Earlier records, dating back several years, show consistent engagement in physically active pursuits such as international travel, hiking, yoga, and bicycling, along with family-centered social events. She regularly updated profile and cover photos to reflect milestones like her wedding and vacations, and she often participated in arts and environmental causes, such as fundraising for the Friends of the White River.

After DOI, Subject's social media activity remained robust and continued to document a physically active and socially involved lifestyle. She shared numerous photos and videos showing participation in biking, hiking, and extensive walking — including overseas travel in France where she recorded daily step counts exceeding 20,000. Post-DOI content also includes professional engagements, such as her work as a Stormwater Inspector, and extensive involvement with the Lotus Education & Arts Foundation, where she served on the Board of Directors. Her posts reflect attendance at festivals, hosting and attending baby showers, frequent family travel, and eventually the birth and care of her child. In addition to personal milestones, she shared advocacy content on healthcare, reproductive rights, and civic participation.

Throughout both periods, there is a consistent pattern of physical mobility, community participation, and family-centered activities. Content of Subject was found on her own social channels, as well as those of her husband, mom, and siblings.

An extensive search of Subject and associates' social media accounts found no mentions of an accident, injury, medical treatment, pain, or limitations to Subject or any associates or visitors.

Property and Court Records:

Subject's current address is 724 N Lindbergh Dr, Bloomington, IN 47404. Property records indicate Subject is the owner.

Subject's address history for the last two years has been included in this report for reference.

Per the background search, there were 0 bankruptcies, 0 liens, and 0 judgments found for Subject.

Is there an AI cheat code that can remove all video/audio of Trump speaking??? I still want to listen to my news podcasts but I don't want to hear his voice or see him speaking. Pictures I guess are ok.

Subject shared a fundraising link for her birthday, raising $505 from a goal of $300: For my birthday this year, I'm asking for donations to Friends of the White River Inc. I've chosen this nonprofit because their mission means a lot to me, and I hope you'll consider contributing as a way to celebrate with me. FOWR have been such a strong presence during my time in Indiana, and one that I have grown to feel so passionate about because I believe so strongly in their mission and their ability to connect people to Indianapolis' greatest asset.

Subject post about Giving Tuesday: Today is #GivingTuesday2021. I have been very fortunate this year, and am able to give to a few local non-profits that are doing wonderful things. If you are able, I encourage you to think about giving to some of your favorites as well! Here are the places I was able to donate to this season: 1. Friends of Lake Monroe is doing incredible work to create a unified approach to managing the watershed of Lake Monroe, our region's drinking water source. 2. All-Options Pregnancy Resource Center provides phone-line services which help pregnant people access the right resources for them (whether they choose to continue their pregnancy, terminate, or adoption). They also provide diapers to families in need, which has been especially important this year as families have faces financial hardships. 3. Kentucky Dance Institute is where I learned most of my best dance moves, made some of the greatest friends, and where I met my love, Nathan. International folk dancing is an important part of my life, and I hope to be able to share it with as many people as possible. 4. Lotus Education & Arts Foundation has become an important part of my Bloomington life, an annual tradition full of music and dancing and friendship and discovery. And new for 2022, I am proud to announce that I am joining the Board of Directors!

What really pisses me off lately, we grew up being told we live in a great country, the best anywhere. Turns out, this is not a good country, not a good place to live. We are a backwards, barbaric people. We do not give a shit about anyone having troubles, we help almost no one to rise above their circumstances. The truth is, we work hard to keep poor people uneducated, living in bad places. We give them guns to shoot themselves with. And many people think we do not need to improve, to change, to grow. Sorry, but I am really feeling down about this country.

Subject pictured with her husband in a New Year's Eve post: This evening, Nathan and I sat on our back porch next to a fire, and contemplated the last year. We are grateful for friends near and far, long term and newly formed, and for the ability to safely gather to celebrate and grieve and hug and cry. We are grateful for new career opportunities, that are fulfilling and engaging and positively impact our communities. We are leaving behind the urge to wait, to put off the things we want or need to do, from scheduling regular doctors appointments to reaching out to friends, from doing dishes the day they become dirty to taking care of the tough tasks first thing in the day. We are bringing forward connection, maintaining connections to our roots and strengthening connections with new friends, new hobbies, new ways of enjoying life. We are looking forward to so many things. Travels. Home updates. The hope of expanding our family. We are grateful for good health, fulfilling jobs, wonderful family, and beautiful friendships. ☑Happy New Year 2022 ☑

Subject shared a New York Times article, How Long Covid Exhausts the Body. I know we're all tired of masks, but getting Covid is really not something I want to experience, even if it's likely to be "mild" thanks to vaccination. Long Covid is a disability, and given how difficult and inadequate the American healthcare system is for healthy people, I cannot imagine how it will be able to substantially support those needing long-term care and rehabilitation. As someone actively trying to get pregnant, I'm doing everything to keep my body healthy so I can have a safe pregnancy, and welcome a healthy baby. That includes masking. "Long Covid is different: A chronic illness with a wide variety of symptoms, many of which are not explainable using conventional lab tests. Difficulties in detecting the illness have led some doctors to dismiss patients, or to misdiagnose their symptoms as psychosomatic. But researchers looking more deeply at long Covid patients have found visible dysfunction throughout the body. Studies estimate that perhaps 10 to 30 percent of people infected with the coronavirus may develop long-term symptoms." this article is free to read, whether or not you have a NYT subscription

Reminder: It's Birthday Month! As I reflect on 32 and look forward to 33, I'm feeling pretty excited for what the next year holds. As some of you may know, I recently joined the Board of Directors for the Lotus Education & Arts Foundation. I am excited that this spring marks the return to in-person events, notably the return of Lotus Blossoms to schools. This year for my birthday, instead of asking for gifts for myself, I would like to give the gifts to Lotus. I am planning to match all gifts up to $350, which will support programming in two (or more) schools! See link below to donate. Mark the donation for the Lotus Blossoms Educational Outreach Program, and in the comments tell them I sent you. This year, Blossoms will be bringing Tuvan throat singers, a Native American hoop and powwow dancer, Argentinian singer/songwriters, and an Indian traditional musician to Bloomington, Monroe County, and other nearby schools. There's even opportunities for the public to participate (I'll be seeing the Tuvan throat singers on the 21st!), so sign up for the newsletter to be the first to find out about those opportunities. Much love, and many thanks, to all who continue to support my adventures. This is gonna be a great one!

😞 ugh. It's such a different and difficult world to raise children in. I try so hard to teach my kids to be accepting and love themselves but it is hard! Ezra is only 6yo and has already seen how cruel ppl can be because he likes painting his finger nails and wearing leggings 😞. Who cares?! He's 6. Plus it's not affecting you at all.

Two years ago, Nathan and I decided we were ready to start growing our family (two people counts as a family, too, btw). I was finally in a full time job, with real benefits and health insurance, and it felt like we were in a good space to take on a child. So we stopped all preventive measures, and waited gleefully, hoping it would happen quickly. After a year and a half of no pregnancy, I made an appointment with my OBGYN. She got me started on two prescriptions: one to induce a period so we could start a fresh cycle, and another to induce follicle & egg growth. We've had to up the dosages a few times now, and each round of meds also gets a GYN ultrasound (meaning the wand goes up the vagina to get a nice internal view of the ovaries and uterine lining... fun.). Even with health insurance, I'm paying for each prescription, each ultrasound, and each follow-up appointment. Part of why we waited, was to be able to afford all the costs that come with pregnancy and trying to get pregnant. To date, I have spent at least $2500, out of pocket. The longer it takes to get pregnant, the more intensive measures we will have to try and the more expensive things will get. Not to mention the cost of actually being pregnant and giving birth. We're prepared for these costs, but it is something we have chosen. One of the "side effects" of the prescription that induces follicle growth is that there is an increased likelihood of multiple eggs being released, which means an increased risk of twins (or triplets!). Being pregnant with multiples carries increased health risks to both the babies and to the pregnant person, and is something we are taking very seriously. We are in a good financial situation to handle twins, if that is what happens. I am so excited about our possibility of having kids, but I am fearful about the risks to the quality of healthcare I may require due to the recent Supreme Court decision. Maternal healthcare in Indiana is already not great, and throw in religious zealots thinking they have the final say on how my doctor can treat my health needs?! It's terrifying. It almost makes me not want to have kids. There are so many ways that getting pregnant can go wrong, and abortion may be necessary. When the Indiana General Assembly gathers for a special session this month, likely to impose greater abortion restrictions, I hope each and every one of those Hoosier representatives realizes the damage they will do to our state, and to the many folks who need abortion as healthcare. It's none of their damn business why I or anyone else may need an abortion. So, all of this to say: Abortion is healthcare. Being pregnant should be a choice.

Very happy that my 1 mile commute to work can be accomplished by bike or walking, which also allows us to be a one car household. Many days, that car sits in our driveway because Nate can also walk or bike to work. We are very lucky to have built our lives in this way, but shouldn't it be easy for everyone to not have to rely on a costly vehicle? Fun tidbit from the article: "Buffalo, NY, where commuters spend an average of 22 minutes in transit and $641 annually on their commutes, took the top spot as the best city. "

Less than half of Americans still commute to work in 2022, but for those who do, their experience commuting varies greatly depending on which city they're commuting to.

Here are the worst cities for commuters in the U.S.

Subject shared a podcast about abortion legislation. In case you missed it earlier this week: A glimpse into the reality of abortion legislation on miscarriage care in Texas. This is the reality Indiana could soon face, and one that could become my reality. It's unacceptable. Our doctors should not be withholding important healthcare because of fear of repercussions.

Subject pictured with her husband in Lyon, France. Thank you all for the love for our newest addition! We hit post and immediately jetted off to France. Our first night in Lyon was wonderful! Had dinner at Cafe Jura, one of the local bouchon-style restaurants, and walked around a bit. We powered through, but jet lag kept us from staying out late. Last few pics show our morning view, of the church across the alley with coffee already in hand.

Subject pictured with her husband in France. Monday's adventures took us to a cafe near the market for a pre-breakfast pain au chocolate, then breakfast at a fancy old cafe where the intellectuals would meet for lively discussion, a bike ride along the Rhône, exploring the Parc de la Tête d'Or and the little zoo and botanical gardens within, an afternoon cocktail* and dessert, dinner at Restaurant L'entrecote (pre-fixed menu of steak & fries, with an amazing butter and herb sauce ☐), and a little post-dinner walk to the river. Only 16,900 steps today...

Subject pictured with her husband in Chamonix, France. This morning we picked up a rental car and drove to Chamonix! We were quite hungry when we arrived, so we opted for the famed raclette ☐☐ checked into our cute little hotel, and went up the mountain for views of the bigger mountain, Mont Blanc ☐ amazing to see snow at the tops! We were too late to do a full hike and still catch the cable car back down, but we managed a small hike and wandered more of the town. A brief respite on our balcony, then a little more meandering and late dinner of onion soup, because apparently there is always more room for cheese. We also ordered chanterelle mushrooms atop French toast, which was not totally what we were expecting. Nearly 17,000 steps today! Our calves are getting pretty defined ☐☐

Subject pictured with her husband in Chamonix, France. Spent our Chamonix morning getting a good long hike in near the edge of town and along the river, where we recognized several mushrooms, saw helicopters going up and down the mountain, and met our first French cat. We had lunch at Cool Cats, an artisanal hotdog place, wandered a bit more to take in the mountain air, then headed back to Lyon. Many thanks to Nathan for doing all the driving ☐☐ leisurely early evening, then a walk to find some dinner to-go. We ate amongst the youths on the Saône River, enjoying the French hip hop they were playing from their speakers. Came back to the apartment taking a more meandering route and finally saw the front of the church that the apartment abuts.

Subject pictured with her husband in Paris. We beat our total steps in a day record with 26,358 today! Got some mileage in before taking a bike tour of the major monuments. Had a brief afternoon rest, then an early dinner of world famous couscous at Loov Resto. Hoped the line at the Louvre would be a little shorter, but everyone else seemed to have the same idea, so we kept walking to find gelato and rest our feet. Took the subway back toward the Eiffel Tower to see it lit up at night, which was quite lovely! Our tired feet carried us back to the hotel for an early evening in. We are not late night people anymore ☐

Subject pictured in Paris with her husband. Our final day in Paris clocked us with our second highest step count of the trip, 23,851 steps! We started our day at The French Bastards for fuel to then walk to Montmartre neighborhood for our own walking tour, based on one we'd seen in the Lonely Planet travel book. We climbed the steps to see the outside of Sacre-Coeur, where someone has been in prayer 24/7 for over 135 years. The views at the top were worth it. Montmartre holds lots of history, having housed many well known artists and poets at some point in their career. Refueled with amazing gallettes (savory, buckwheat crepes) and then took a very crowded subway to Musee d'Orsay for the afternoon. All we have to say is "Wow". Back to the hotel for a rest, then a quick stop at a grocery for supplies for a light charcuterie dinner, and over to a vista overlooking the Seine to eat. We took a slow meander back, taking it all in one last time.

Subject included in video about stormwater. What does ☐ and ☐☐ have in common? 2 things!!! Thanks Erica for the picture of the French storm drain, and a word to the at-home bakers— don't worry! Bread should still turn out fine because you can add water to the flour as needed. Croissants are special because they have a limited window of opportunity to add water.

Who knew that the days I took my dad to treatments and doctors appointments would be reflected on with fondness. I'm so glad I was able to support him in this small way, and for these kinds of tiny moments of finding the joy that we were able to share ☺☺

Subject baby shower in Buffalo, NY, Subject pictured with others, including co-claimant Emily Penna. Nathan and I are feeling so loved and even more ready to meet our little one (though they can continue growing as much as they need to). Thank you to Nana Nicole for hosting such a love-filled gathering of Buffalo friends and family; to Emily for her surprise appearance; to David & Ali for helping with set-up; to Catherine & Stef for the fun games, prizes, & succulents; and to the friends and family that have showered our little one with so much love already ☺☺

The image shows two women standing in a living room. The woman on the left is wearing a floral patterned dress and is holding a framed quilt. The woman on the right is wearing a light-colored cardigan over a dark patterned dress. The quilt is white with a floral pattern and has the word 'BABY' written in large, decorative letters across the bottom. The background features a white fireplace mantel with various decorative items, including a large floral arrangement, a small figurine, and a framed picture. A window with blinds is visible on the left side of the room.

Subject birthday post. Happy Birthday to me ☺ At 34, I feel like I've already been given the world. Getting to welcome our first child in about a month (!!!) has shown me how wonderful and generous our family and friends are. In lieu of gifts for myself, I would love for gifts to be made to Lotus Education & Arts Foundation toward their Lotus Blossoms Education and Outreach Program. Their Blossoms program brings musical and visual artists to the community, through performances at schools, libraries, community centers, book stores, etc. Their big community event is the Lotus Blossoms World Bazaar, being held on April 1 at Fairview Elementary, open to all ages. I know this is something our little one will be excited about each year, and am looking forward to attending some of the community events for this year's line-up, as much as my belly will allow me to. As a Board Member in my second year, I will also be giving through a donation match! My goal is to be able to provide the funding to bring an artist to a local school, $350. I will be matching all donations! Donations can be made via the Lotus Website: <https://www.lotusfest.org/donate/> A full line-up of the Blossoms schedule public events can be found here: <https://www.lotusfest.org/events/>

Hey Indy peeps! We know of a really wonderful cat needing to be rehomed urgently. Let me know if you're interested and I'll connect you to their owner. See info below: Hi, my name is Lexa, I'm a 7 yo fur baby who has only lived in one human home. Unfortunately, my humans have to move urgently and are not able to take me with them. I have spent all of my life and am comfortable around babies, small children, and other fur babies like me! I like to play around but am not aggressive and love to cuddle. I even love taking baths!!! I have never lived outdoors so that would be scary for me. Please, if you are looking for a wonderful addition to your family I would love to join.

Subject shared a post about a low clearance bridge. Lmao there's a bridge a few blocks from our house that also does this, especially to Uhauls from all the students moving around at the start of the semester. Would love to see the current mural get revamped! We have a notorious truck-destroying bridge here in KC. Truck drivers keep ignoring the signs and trying (always unsuccessfully) to go under it anyway, so now we also have MURALS!! Check out the story (with pics) in the replies.

Earlier this month I submitted an Op-Ed to The Herald Times. I have yet to see it published, and am not sure it will be. Instead, I want to share what I wrote from my perspective as a Board member about the importance of supporting and keeping Lotus Education & Arts Foundation in our community. I hope many of you will join me, Nate, and Manny at this year's Lotus Festival! Please share as you see fit. When was the last time you attended a Lotus Festival? Has it been on your Bloomington bucket list but never quite happened? Make 2024 your year! Join us for the thirty-first annual 2024 Lotus World Music & Arts Festival October 3 - 6, and bring the kids! New this year, children under 12 are FREE (though they will still need a wristband). Own a local business? Become a sponsor! Want to show the love? Make a donation, better yet - make a recurring monthly donation and support the local businesses that sponsor and partner with Lotus. Keep Bloomington small-town with big city amenities. For over thirty years, the Lotus Education and Arts Foundation (LEAF) has become a Bloomington community staple. While maybe not the first thing that comes to mind when you think of Bloomington, the annual Lotus World Music and Arts Festival is an iconic piece of Bloomington's vibrant culture. What started as an idea for a good time fueled by a few passionate individuals pooling connections and resources, has morphed into an organization connecting southern Indiana to world music, art, and culture. Living in Bloomington is appealing because of the connections to the world made possible by LEAF and the Lotus Festival. We cannot all travel the world, but LEAF brings the world right to our doorsteps. Community members of all ages experience year-round programming that introduces them to a new worldview. While the community flocks to Lotus Fest, the springtime Lotus Blossoms events branch out into the community via special events at schools, assisted living facilities, libraries, bookstores, and other community gathering spaces. The first Lotus Festival started in 1994 because a few people had a vision and pulled their community together to make it happen. They created a magical event and found a community of support, so they kept making it happen. The Bloomington community has made it possible, and in turn, the Bloomington community has gained in amazing ways: 130+ countries and regions have been represented, over 1000 artists or ensembles have performed, and an estimated economic impact of $500,000 each festival weekend is funneled into local businesses. The Lotus Festival, in fact the Lotus organization, cannot continue to bring artists from the far reaches of the world without ongoing community support. If Bloomington wants to continue touting itself as a small town with big-city arts and culture, we need to step up and make it happen. Festival sponsorships ensure we have stages, sound equipment, and amenities for the artists. Buying tickets to the Festival covers artist fees, including rising costs for visas. Festival volunteers set up and tear down tents, run the venues, provide artist support, and add to the festival magic. Bloomington, Monroe County, and southern Indiana have a diamond in the Lotus Education and Arts Foundation. We need to show up and appreciate it. As the Lotus Board of Directors, we are intimately aware of the powerful, joyous moments that the Lotus Festival can provide, the exhaustion that comes from dancing all night and moving from one venue listening to Mongolian throat singers to another with an all-woman Afro-Colombian folk/rap/beatboxing group, culminating in pouring out of the last show, still swaying to the music and sweaty from dancing with the crowd only to see a friend you haven't seen in ages with a smile on their face because they were witness to the same out-of-this-world performance. But we also see the ways our community is taking those magical moments for granted. Without community support, our beloved Lotus Festival cannot continue in the form that we have come to know. Costs for the simplest of festival necessities are increasing; artist visa costs have nearly tripled from pre-2020 costs. As Board members, we support LEAF through monetary contributions, by volunteering our time, and by bringing new folks into the world of Lotus. Is there an AI cheat code that can remove all video/audio of Trump speaking??? I still want to listen to my news podcasts but I don't want to hear his voice or see him speaking. Pictures I guess are ok.

Cummings Dental

201 N Morton St, Bloomington, IN 47404

★★★★★ a week ago

All of the staff are friendly, polite, just wonderful people to encounter. Dr Cummings is also very friendly and was easy to chat with. I had my second visit this week. On my first visit six months ago, I was nervous as I hadn't been to the dentist in way too long (between moving, grad school, and changing jobs it hadn't been a priority). I was able to schedule that first appointment within just a few weeks of calling! I did have to get a couple fillings, which were scheduled quickly and were painless. They have been very intentional about creating a clean, comfortable atmosphere. They've also been flexible and very communicative if an earlier time slot opens up. I would highly recommend Dr Cummings for your dental needs.
