About

For my birthday this year, I'm asking for donations to The Ocean Cleanup. I've chosen this nonprofit because their mission means a lot to me, and I hope you'll consider contributing as a way to celebrate with me. Every little bit will help me reach my goal. I've included information about The Ocean Cleanup below.

The Ocean Cleanup designs and develops advanced technologies to rid the world's oceans of plastic.

A young girl with brown hair is sitting on the floor, wearing a pink unicorn onesie with a hood that has a white unicorn face and a pink bow. She is looking directly at the camera with a neutral expression. Behind her is a decorated Christmas tree with warm white lights and colorful ornaments. To the left, a zebra-striped party hat is visible. The scene is indoors, likely in a living room.

Caption: Mmm .. lol ☹️ I cry just by simply looking at who i was, to what i became and to now who I am. I will never be that simple naive young n free happy spirit again, but have grown solid , wise, and strong (in some ways). I have learned never to judge another, u only have control to change who you are, and God is the only one 🙏 who can save u. I am broken in many ways and there are things I can never get back or take back , but I know I will NEVER go back. And I PRAY my wisdom gained will be enough to keep my children from making the same mistakes. ☹️

I hope if our paths have crossed I've treated you with kindness, even to those that weren't kind to me. However, If I was unkind and fumbled in the darkness of my confusion, I truly apologize.. Caption: Okay ☺ so I have the best dad! Lol I promised kids I would get trampoline together on my days off (as they already know about it, can't wrap or put under tree so figured why wait) and so got up off butt around noon, my dad helped me carry boxes to the back (lmao as one was 3/4 my weight and the other weighed more) and also stuck around n help put it together (well more like I stuck around lmao as he most the muscle), we got trampoline together, and was working on net when I had to leave to get kids lol.. and he continued working as pulled off. So may or may not be done when get home but either way he is the absolute best! ☺

Subject shared a post about being an recovered addict Caption: DEAR ADDICT HATERS!!!! Hello, you don't know me but I am an addict. I am one of the "dope fiends" or "crackheads" you love to bash whenever someone mentions addiction on social media or hear it in conversation. I know it's hard to forgive the things we sometimes do because of our addiction, but I have a question for you. What is the worst thing you have ever done? Obviously, I won't get an answer to this question but think about it. The thing that you hate that you did. You know, that one thing that not too many people even know about. Well, what if everyone knew about it? What if for the rest of your life you were labeled by that one act that you would erase in a second if you had the chance? That is what being an addict is like, kind of. Now, I don't feel like being an addict is the worst thing a person can be or do. You, however, feel like it's a terrible thing. Don't get me wrong: If I could erase it from my life, I would. In an instant, it would be gone, but I don't have that option. I can't even do what you do and pretend that this thing I did didn't happen. In order for me to ensure it never happens again, I have to work hard on making sure it doesn't. If I don't, my disease will tell me I can have a drink or do a line and not fall back into full-blown addiction, but I will. Do you work hard to make sure your worst thing never happens again? Let me guess... you are thinking, Addiction is not a disease. It's a choice. Right? Yes, all addiction starts with a choice. The same damn choice you made when you were young and hanging out with friends. You drank the same beer I drank. The same pot I smoked. You even tried the same line of white stuff someone put in front of you at a party. You were able to walk away and not take it to the extreme. Since I have the disease, I will spend the rest of my life either struggling to stay high or fighting to stay clean. As children, we don't decide we would rather be an addict instead of a cop. You don't see children pretending that their dolls and stuffed animals are dope sick. When is the last time you talked to a little girl who told you she couldn't wait to grow up so she could turn tricks to feed the insatiable hunger of her drug addiction? My best friend didn't blow out the candles as a child wishing for a substance abuse disorder because she couldn't wait for the day her kids would go to foster care. Nobody Wants to have substance use disorder. Some of us just do. So always remember: You made those same choices, too. You just got lucky that it was me and not you. If you still have doubts, you can take those up with the Center for Disease Control or the United States Surgeon General. They have classified addiction as a disease, but then again... I am sure you know more about it than they do, right? I pray that you don't have to reevaluate these opinions because you find out your child or parent is an addict. If you do, just know that we will accept you into our community. We will help your loved one. Do you know why we would do that? Because we are good people who just want the chance to live like everyone else. So please, before you write another post bashing people who are suffering, think about it. Not only are you hurting the people who have the disease, you could be hurting everyone that loves them. You have people on your friends list or people that may overhear you at work who have children who are suffering right this moment from addiction. What did they do to deserve the awful things you put out into the universe that do nothing but perpetuate hate and judgment? Addiction is a disease. You have a right to your opinion. But no matter what, hurting people is wrong. If your struggling please reach out, there is a better way of life waiting for you! 📧❤️📧 (STOLEN FROM A FELLOW ADDICT) #wedorecoverchallenge

You made those same choices, too.

You just got lucky that it was me and not you.

If you still have doubts, you can take those up with the Center for Disease Control or the United States Surgeon General. They have classified addiction as a disease, but then again... I am sure you know more about it than they do, right?

I pray that you don't have to reevaluate these opinions because you find out your child or parent is an addict. If you do, just know that we will accept you into our community. We will help your loved one. Do you know why we would do that? Because we are good people who just want the chance to live like everyone else.

So please, before you write another post bashing people who are suffering, think about it. Not only are you hurting the people who have the disease, you could be hurting everyone that loves them. You have people on your friends list or people that may overhear you at work who have children who are suffering right this moment from addiction. What did they do to deserve the awful things you put out into the universe that do nothing but perpetuate hate and judgment?

Addiction is a disease.

You have a right to your opinion. But no matter what, hurting people is wrong.

If you struggling please reach out, there is a better way of life waiting for you! 🙏❤️💯

A screenshot of a Facebook post and its comment section. The post shows a woman with dark hair in pigtails, wearing a red t-shirt and a small American flag hat. She is sitting on the floor, holding a red balloon with a white star. In front of her is a blue bucket filled with 'Bunch O Balloons' and 'Hackit Bags'. Behind her is a large American flag backdrop. The comment section on the right shows several replies from friends, mostly praising the photo and the balloons. The comments are from Tommy Rieder, Marianne Taylor Schurg, Kristeena Mendez, Wayne C Pirl, and Doreen Lynch. There are also some emojis and a 'Love' sticker in the comments.

Doreen Lynch those are beautiful!!! Yeah last time was design with gel powder, but this time was gel polish. I think it's so cool!! lol ur designs r wild!! I can never think of anything good like that 🤔 I google it. There is one tech who I trust to do whatever she feels like knowing will be amazing but she been busy lol!

Caption: So today is Father's Day, I do wish all those amazing fathers (dads/daddys) a wonderful Father's Day! You know the ones who are there for it all! and even the ones who may not of been there from day one (blood or not blood) but are trying. Also to the father's who want to be there and deserve to be there but are selfishly kept away, but most of all to my daddy! A man who has always been there! A hard working dedicated father who taught his 4 girls that nothing comes free! To always work hard, and never give up! Even the hardest of moments he stood tall and held his head high for all of us.! Who worked endlessly and tirelessly to take us all around the US on many vacations so we grew up knowing there was more than just Ohio to see. Who took FOUR young girls to an *NSYNC concert lol ! Yes he sat in them stands with 4 screaming girls ☺ and many others of course. Who always treated our friends as family (My mommy too! Everyone who came in our home was considered family). When our mom was in the hospital fighting for her life, my dad and my mammaw was there! We grew up with a man who set the bar so dang high for any other men out there. My dad and mom are the rarest gems out there. N I am one of the luckiest people to call them mine!! ☺☺ Always teaching us God comes first, family second ! So blessed!! Help Us Bring Arya Home for Good

Dear friends, family, and kind-hearted strangers,

We are reaching out with hopeful hearts, asking for your support in our fight to keep our sweet Arya Mendez in the loving, stable home she deserves. My husband, Josh Mendez, and I, Kristeena Erisman-Mendez, are doing everything we can to gain custody of my stepdaughter Arya, but we need help to afford the legal representation required to make it happen.

We have found an incredible child custody lawyer who truly understands our case and believes in fighting for Arya's best interests. However, the legal fees include a $5,000 retainer—an amount we simply cannot afford on our own. We would never ask for help if we didn't absolutely need it, but this is about Arya's well-being, security, and future.

When Arya first came into our care at just 14 months old, she had so many struggles—she wasn't walking or talking, was surviving on powder milk, and suffered from a persistent yeast infection. With love, patience, and care, she has made incredible progress. She's now talking, walking, and thriving on solid food and proper nutrition. Her pediatrician has even noted how much better she's doing compared to past records!

More than just physical health, Arya has flourished emotionally and socially. She was once terrified of new people, but now she enjoys meeting friendly faces. She used to fear bath time, but now she trusts and enjoys it. She has formed deep bonds with our family—she adores her Pappaw, cuddles with her sissy Christy, plays with BradLee, and finds comfort in Hope's lap. She showers us all with love, giving hugs throughout the day and cherishing every moment with her daddy when he's home.

Arya is not just living here—she belongs here. This is her home, her safe place, her family. The idea of her being taken away is heartbreaking, and we cannot bear to think of the confusion and pain it would cause her.

We are doing everything we can, but we cannot do this alone. Please, if you can, donate to help us cover the legal costs to fight for Arya's custody. Any amount, big or small, will make a difference. If you can't donate, please consider sharing our story. Your support means the world to us and, most importantly, to Arya.

gofundme.com/f/us-to-afford-a-lawyer-for-arya importantly, to Arya.

From the bottom of our hearts, thank you for helping us fight for the little girl who has already fought so hard to thrive.

With love and gratitude,
Josh & Kristeena Erisman-Mendez
