Vikings' Rashod Hill: Removed from COVID-19 list

Rotowire • DEC 31, 2021

Hill was activated off the reserve/COVID-19 list Friday.

Hill was placed in the league's health and safety protocols ahead of Sunday's loss to the Vikings and was inactive for the contest. However, the 29-year-old offensive lineman has cleared protocols and is expected to fill his usual reserve role behind Christian Darrisaw during the team's Week 17 showdown with the Packers.

Vikings' Rashod Hill: Moved to COVID-19 list

Rotowire • DEC 26, 2021

Hill was placed on the COVID-19 list Sunday.

Hill provides depth on the offensive line, but his absence shouldn't create a huge problem for the Vikings. It remains to be seen if he'll be able to recover in time for next week's contest against the Packers.

True freshman Gunner Roach (Mobile, Ala.) will also try to get some reps and Tyler Matthews (Wichita, Kan.), a transfer from TCU, will sit out this year due to NCAA rules.

Wide Receivers

Southern Miss returns three of their top five pass receivers from a year ago and return 54.4 percent of its receiving yard production. It is a unit in which three true freshmen finished in the top eight in receiving yards last season.

Offensive Line

The Golden Eagles return three starters to the offensive line for this season but also felt the need to bolster the position's depth over the last offseason and did just that.

Three starters return from last year's roster on the offensive line, including redshirt junior Rashod Hill (Jacksonville, Fla.), senior Fred Moore (Heidelberg, Miss.) and sophomore Cameron Tom (Baton Rouge, La.). The trio combined to make 31 starts last season and these players are the building blocks around this year's offensive front.

2014 Golden Eagle Outlook

Two other offensive linemen that will battle for playing time after suffering injuries a year ago include redshirt freshman Devin Farris (Waynesboro, Miss.), who was injured early in the season, redshirt and junior Michael Brinson (Flowood, Miss.) who missed the entire season.

Redshirt sophomores Oliver Bates (Tylertown, Miss.) and Brandon Farmer (Gulfport, Miss.), along with redshirt junior Chaz Cavnac (Slidell, La.) each saw limited action last season and will look to join in the rotation on the offensive line this fall.

The Golden Eagles also went out and added a pair of junior college signees to play up front, both from Hinds Junior College, and are Thomas Collins (Jackson, Miss.) and Norman Price (Vicksburg, Miss.)

A couple of Alabama-Southern Miss games are noteworthy, for all the wrong reasons. There was the Reggie Collier-led upset of one of Paul "Bear" Bryant's last Alabama teams. And then there was the 21-0 loss to USM in 2000 that should have been the impetus for firing Mike DuBose.

This Southern Miss team, though, is nothing like those teams. The Golden Eagles have few weapons. The quality of the program has fallen off significantly since the questionable decision to force former coach Jeff Bower out of a job.

The 2014 edition of USM football has seen the Golden Eagles get blown out 49-0 by Mississippi State in the opener, followed by barely beating Alcorn 26-20 in Week 2.

The 2014 edition of USM football has seen the Golden Eagles... Mississippi State in the opener, followed by barely beating Alcorn 26-20 in Week 2. Alabama, which had trash-time work cut short by lightning last week against FAU, figures to be able to empty the bench in this game.

OFFENSE

Southern Miss would prefer to throw the ball on all four downs if it was possible. The Golden Eagles often start four wide receivers in its base set, and there is not even a tight end in the primary alignment. Unfortunately for USM, the offense has been balanced up to this point - the team has been equally bad running and throwing the football. The only positive thing to say at this point is that the Golden Eagles have gained more than they've lost in the turnover game. Alabama counters with what has proven to be a very multiple pro-set attack indeed. The Crimson Tide is 9th in the country in total offense even though the Florida Atlantic game was stopped in the middle of the fourth quarter due to weather.

Nick Mullens has thrown every pass for the Golden Eagles so far this year. He's 41-of-75 (54.7%) for 420 yards, 2 touchdowns and 2 interceptions. He's also shown pretty good wheels, carrying 13 times for 44 yards (3.4 avg.). But the Blake-and-Jake Show for Alabama is producing much better results. Mullens has averaged just 5.6 yards per attempt; Blake Sims (10.2) and Jake Coker (8.4) are almost twice that. Alabama still has not made a definitive call on who its starter is. will Jake Show for Alabama is producing much better results. He is averaging 5.6 yards per attempt; Blake Sims (10.2) and Jake Coker (8.8) are also producing well. That Alabama still has not made a definitive call on who its starter is, will presumably continue to start Sims until something untoward happens. Sims is completing 76.6% of his passes for 478 total yards, and is averaging 6.2 yards on the ground. Coker threw for 202 yards in his debut against FAU, averaged 62.5% completion and ran for another 23 yards on 4 carries (5.8 avg.). Cole Weeks will back up Mullens for FAU; neither is particularly impressive in terms of size or ability.

Advantage: Alabama

RUNNING BACKS

Freshman Ito Smith will start for the Golden Eagles, but he has struggled, rushing for just a 3.6-yard average on 41 carries. USM has yet to record a rushing touchdown. Both of Smith's usual backups, Jalen Richard and George Payne, are injured; Payne figures to get limited snaps in this game while Richard is probably out altogether. It doesn't matter much, though, as the two combined for 18 yards on 8 carries (2.3 avg.) before their respective injuries. Tez Parks has been filling in for Richard and Payne, and he has shown nice explosion, getting 57 yards on 7 carries (8.1 avg.). The Golden Eagles do have a fullback available, Daythan Davis, who has caught 1 short pass and has no carries. Alabama counters with T.J. Yeldon and Derrick Henry at the top of the depth chart, with Kenyan Drake providing depth. Tyren Jones and Altee Tenpenny figure to play in this game as well. Jalston Fowler gives Alabama an improving presence at fullback, with Michael Nysewander backing him up. Really no contest here. Advantage: Alabama

WIDE RECEIVERS

Casey Martin is the Golden Eagles' leading receiver, but he has just 11 catches for 95 yards (8.6 avg.) and no touchdowns. Martin isn't even a full-time starter; James Cox, D.J. Thompson, Kyle Foster and Markese Triplett are the typical first-teamers. Triplett is capable of being a matchup problem for defenses; at 6'4" and 230 pounds, he's basically a small tight end. Foster has been the team's long-range threat so far, as he's averaging almost 20 yards per catch. Michael Thomas is the Southern Miss is all about hybrids. The Golden Eagles use only three true linemen and two true linebackers, with a hybrid end/LB "Bandit" position and a "Spur," a hybrid linebacker-safety, on the field in base alignment. It's a defense that seems to be fashioned to stop a hurry-up, no-huddle spread, but Alabama doesn't run that. Right now, it's not stopping anything. Southern Miss' best ranking in any major defensive category is 69th in raw pass defense. Alabama, meanwhile, is seeing its defensive rankings return to form; the Crimson Tide is 3rd in the country in rushing defense already, and that number should improve with this week's work. The Tide's secondary has given up too many yards so far, though, and that won't improve much this week with pass-happy Southern Miss in town.

DEFENSIVE LINE

The Golden Eagles have good size inside, where Adam Williams starts at nose and Rakeem Nunez-Roches starts at off-tackle. Michael Smith is more than big enough to play the strongside end spot. And yet, Southern Miss ranks 113th against the run. Dasman McCullum starts at the Bandit spot, sort of a Jack linebacker position but with a greater emphasis on beef. There is no depth at all, however, with USM's reserve tackles weighing in at 245 (Nic Bekkers), 261 (Wil Freeman) and 289 (nosetackle Draper Riley). Alabama will likely continue to use A'Shawn Robinson in the middle, flanked by Jonathan Allen and D.J. Pettway at the ends. Brandon Ivory, Korren Kirven and Josh Frazier will back up the middle, while Dalvin Tomlinson, Dee Liner, Da'Shawn Hand and Jarran Reed will spot the ends. Anthony Orr could see time in this game. Alabama is better overall, but particularly in terms of depth.

Advantage: Alabama

LINEBACKERS

Brian Anderson and Alan Howze get the call in the middle for Southern Miss. Speed is an issue with Anderson, while Howze is borderline on size. Either David Bertucci or Justin Penn will get the call at the Spur spot, which probably should be listed under the defensive backs category. The two players average around 200 pounds. Alabama will start Troy DePriest and Reggie DeLand in the middle, with Xavier

The two players average around 200 pounds. Alabama will start Trey DePriest and Reggie Ragland in the middle, with Xzavier Dickson and Denzel Devall as the outside linebackers. DePriest's return against Florida Atlantic was well welcomed, and he proved to be much more able to call plays against a spread offense than Reuben Foster had been in the opener. Foster will back up the middle along with Shaun Dion Hamilton, while Dillon Lee splits time between inside and outside linebacker. Ryan Anderson, Tim Williams, Rashaan Evans and Walker Jones add depth outside; Williams and Evans provided a major-league 1-2 punch coming off the corner against FAU. Advantage: Alabama

DEFENSIVE BACKS

Give Southern Miss credit; the Golden Eagles can do some good things in the passing game. USM ranks 14th nationally in interceptions and the pass defense is a big reason why the Golden Eagles are 5th in red zone defense. But in addition to ranking 69th in raw pass defense, Southern Miss is 102nd in pass efficiency defense, meaning there are too many big plays being allowed here. Picasso Nelson and Kalan Reed will start at the corners, with Emmanuel Johnson and Jacorius Cotton at the safeties. Kevin Williams, Jomez Applewhite, Trae Collins and Kelsey Douglas will back up the starters. Alabama will start Eddie Jackson and Cyrus Jones at the corners, with Bradley Sylve and Tony Brown backing them up. Nick Perry and Landon Collins get the call at safety, with Geno Smith and Jabriel Washington the primary backups there. Others, like Anthony Averett and Marlon Humphrey, or walkons such as Jerrod Bierbower, could find themselves playing in this game.

Alabama's quarterbacks will have to avoid being baited into bad throws by this

SPECIAL TEAMS

Kicker Corey Acosta has a strong leg, but so-so accuracy for Southern Miss. Punter Tyler Sarrazin has been barely adequate. Kickoff returns have been terrible, and the Southern Miss defense hasn't forced enough points to rank in punt returns yet. For Alabama, the kicking positions have become a surprise strength of the team. Adam Griffith's reliability at kicker is welcomed, and true freshman punter J.K. Scott has shown a gold-standard leg. Alabama is also dangerous in the punt return game, but kickoff returns and kickoff coverage both need to be more consistent. Advantage:
Alabama

OVERALL

Alabama leads in all eight categories and in both OL-DL matchups. This game shouldn't be close.

The Golden Eagles have been one of the worst teams in Division-IA for a year or so, and it's unlikely the turnaround will start in Tuscaloosa. For that matter, Southern Miss ought to hope for another lightning storm – say, about midway through the first quarter – if it wants to keep the score close.

The Golden Eagles have been known in the past for playing Alabama tough and keeping the margins respectable. It's just hard to imagine one of those games this time around.

Alabama will be a bit thin this week, as DeAndrew White is out and Christian Jones may sit as a precautionary measure. That would leave Amari Cooper starting next to Chris Black, with ArDarius Stewart, Cameron Sims and Raheem Falkins the primary backups. Robert Foster and Parker Barrineau would add depth. O.J. Howard and Brian Vogler will continue to split work at tight end, with Dakota Ball, Ty Flournoy-Smith and Brandon Greene providing depth behind them. Malcolm Faciane is also available. Alabama's offensive line might be the most pleasant surprise of all this season. Center Ryan Kelly, guards Leon Brown and Arie Kouandjio and tackles Cam Robinson and Austin Shepherd have been solid in both games so far. Depth is outstanding, with Grant Hill and Dominick Jackson at the tackles, Isaac Luatua and Alphonse Taylor at the guard slots and Bradley Bozeman at center. Southern Miss counters with Cameron Tom at center, Fredrick Moore and Brandon Farmer at the guards and Rashod Hill at left tackle. Norman Price will start at the other tackle slot if he's healthy; if not, a freshman, Jerry Harris, will have to take the reins. Oliver Bates, Devin Farris and Randal Agee provide depth. Alabama is much better than USM anyway and with the injury to Price, the gap widens. Advantage: Alabama

MURFREESBORO - Conference USA announced its 2015 All-Conference teams today, as selected by the league's 13 head football coaches. Middle Tennessee (7-5; 6-2) had 13 players recognized with four first team members, two second team picks, and five honorable mention selections. The Blue Raiders also placed four players on the All-Freshman team.

Head Coach Rick Stockstill has now produced 31 first team all-conference players and 26 second team members.

"The best thing about all these players is they are team first guys but are also outstanding individuals," said Stockstill. "All of them have put together rewarding seasons but they will be the first to tell you that winning trumps any individual honor."

The first team selections were linebacker T.T. Barber, safety Kevin Byard, offensive lineman Jaylen Hunter, and wide receiver Richie James.

Barber (Colquitt, GA), who ranks fourth all-time in career tackles at Middle Tennessee, leads the Blue Raiders this season with 89 stops. He also leads the team in tackles for loss with 11.5 and shares the team lead in sacks with 4.0. Barber is a two-time first team All-C-USA pick after winning the honor in 2013 and was a second team pick in 2014.

Byard, a senior from Lithonia, GA, became the programs all-time interception leader earlier this season while also becoming just the seventh player in school history to top 300 tackles. Byard, a first team pick in 2014, leads MT in interceptions this year with four.

Hunter, a senior from Jacksonville, FL, played a vital role in Middle Tennessee producing a 3,000-yard passer and 1,000-yard receiver for the first time in school history. He becomes the first offensive lineman to earn first team honors since Micah James in 2012.

James (Sarasota, FL) turned in the best season of any freshman in Conference USA history with a school record 100 receptions for 1,220 yards and six touchdowns. James is just the second 1,000-yard receiver in MT history.

Second team selections for the Blue Raiders were wide receiver Ed Batties and defensive back Jeremy Cutrer.

Batties' (Fresno, TX) 77 receptions would have been a new school record this year as well if not for James' heroics. The senior also has 960 yards and a school record 13 touchdowns. Batties, who hauled in a school record 13 passes at Illinois, is within reach of becoming just the third player to attain 1,000 receiving yards.

attain 1,000 receiving yards.

Cutrer (Kentwood, LA), a transfer from Mississippi Gulf Coast, made an immediate impact in his first year with the Raider defense. The junior tallied three interceptions, 13 pass breakups and two blocked kicks in 2015.

Honorable mention honorees were long snapper William Eads, linebacker Cavellis Luckett, defensive tackle Pat McNeil, offensive lineman Maurquice Shakir, and quarterback Brent Stockstill.

The league also announced the All-Freshman team and the Raiders had a record four to make the list. Stockstill, James, linebacker Darius Harris, and offensive lineman Chandler Brewer were honored.

Stockstill (Murfreesboro, TN) broke nearly every single-season passing record at Middle Tennessee while setting a new C-USA freshman passing mark. He threw for 3,678 yards and 27 touchdowns to go with a school record seven 300-yard passing games.

James, who had four 100-yard receiving games, ranks third nationally in receptions and leads all freshmen.

Harris (Horn Lake, MS) ranks seventh on the team in tackles with 40 to go with an interception and a forced fumble.

Brewer (Florence, AL) earned starts at guard and tackle in helping pave the way for the programs first 3,000-yard passer and 1,000-yard receiver combination in school history.

JACKSONVILLE-JAGUARS

Kaye's Take: Wells injury puts Jaguars in tough spot along the offensive line

Jaguars offensive tackle Josh Wells will undergo surgery on his right thumb this week. While he isn't a starter or even a proven backup, Wells' injury and lack of availability puts the Jaguars in a tight spot.

Jaguars offensive tackle Josh Wells will undergo surgery on his right thumb this week. While he isn't a starter or even a proven backup, Wells' injury and lack of availability puts the Jaguars in a tight spot.

Wells had been serving as a step-in left tackle as Kelvin Beachum continues to recover from ACL surgery and Luke Joeckel tests the waters at left guard. The third-year player is (was?) likely to serve as the team's swing tackle, the backup to both the winner of the left tackle battle and right tackle Jermei Parnell.

However, with thumb surgery just a few days away, Wells will likely be sidelined for a few weeks at minimum. Last offseason, Wells was placed on injured reserve - ending his season before it started - after undergoing surgery on his left thumb.

Wells, along with fellow third-year lineman Tyler Shatley, has been one of the few offensive linemen that the Jaguars have been able to depend on. Free agent signing Mackenzy Bernadeau has done little to show he belongs as a key piece, as he has been jumped in the lineup by former practice squad lineman, Chris Reed, who hasn't been lighting the blocking world on fire either.

Behind the group of four, the team has veterans like Jeff Linkenbach and Patrick Omameh, who have also somewhat slid under the radar. There are also undrafted free agents Rashod Hill and Pearce Slater, who both seem more likely for the practice squad at this point.

As it is, the left side of the line seems to be in constant flux. The Jaguars, on the surface, likely to serve as the team's swing tackle, the backup to both the winner of the left tackle battle and right tackle Jermei Parnell.

However, with thumb surgery just a few days away, Wells will likely be sidelined for a few weeks at minimum. Last offseason, Wells was placed on injured reserve - ending his season before it started - after undergoing surgery on his left thumb.

As it is, the left side of the line seems to be in constant flux. The Jaguars, on the surface, appear to want Joeckel at left guard and Beachum at left tackle. However, as long as Beachum's health and Joeckel's ability are questioned, the left side of the line can be filed under the "worrisome" category.

Even if the Jaguars are comfortable with Beachum and Joeckel on the left side, depending on how much time Wells misses, there is very little depth in case of injury.

In an ideal world, Linkenbach and Omameh would step up in Wells' absence, but that can't be counted on as the team enters the preseason.

Depth has been an issue on the offensive line throughout the offseason, but Wells' absence (depending on the timetable) could turn an issue into a major problem heading into the team's all-important fourth campaign under Gus Bradley.

Ryan Davis among initial Jaguars cuts

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. - With Saturday's 4 p.m. ET deadline for teams to reduce their rosters to 53 players, the Jacksonville Jaguars began that process on Friday afternoon.

After originally making the team as an undrafted free agent in 2012, Ryan Davis was cut. This off-season Davis was asked to make the transition from a defensive lineman to a hybrid linebacker and pass rusher, which the Jaguars refer to as the Otto position. Davis was also a significant contributor on special teams.

Fellow linebackers Jordan Tripp and Thurston Armbrister were also among Friday's cuts.

So far the Jaguars have also released defensive end Tyrone Holmes, who was selected in the sixth round of this year's NFL draft.

Tweet from Tyrone Holmes (@Tyrone_Holmes_) dated Sep 2, 2016: "Hurts now, but God has a plan." (168 likes)

The team also parted ways with defensive tackle T.J. Barnes and offensive tackle Rashod Hill.

A LOOK INTO SOUTHERN MISS FOOTBALL A 2016 SEASON PREVIEW

By Tim Doherty for Southern Miss Athletic Communications

Despite staging one of the more remarkable rags-to-riches sagas in a storied football history last season, don't expect The University of Southern Mississippi to take the next act for granted.

After three seasons spent wandering college football's wilderness, Southern Miss delighted its faithful with nine wins in 2015. Recovering from a dark journey that saw the once-proud program manage just four victories from 2012-14, the Golden Eagles earned a first-ever division championship in Conference USA's West and a return to December's bowl calendar.

But for Southern Miss, the past is just that, and the Golden Eagles appear poised to embrace a new year with the curtain set to rise on the 2016 football season.

"One of the things that I'm real proud of with this team is that we don't think about last year," senior linebacker C.J. Perry said. "We're trying to write our own season and do the best we can."

Much is expected of Perry and a team that returns 16 starters and 54 lettermen, with Southern Miss the preseason favorite to defend its West Division crown.

But Jay Hopson, who made his debut as a Football Bowl Subdivision head coach when the Golden Eagles opened the season at Kentucky on Sept. 3, said the

Much is expected of Perry and a team that returns 16 starters and 54 lettermen, with Southern Miss the preseason favorite to defend its West Division crown.

But Jay Hopson, who made his debut as a Football Bowl Subdivision head coach when the Golden Eagles opened the season at Kentucky on Sept. 3, said the present, not past results or future expectations, are what matter most.

"The same guy that says something bad when you win zero is the same guy who says something good when you win nine," Hopson said. "So, the reality is, it's not real."

"The one thing I've learned in life, and I think even these players have learned when you go through zero, one, three and nine (victories), you start to realize you have to go out every year. You've got to go to work. Every year is a different year. We're different. Every opponent we play is going to be different from last year or two years ago or a year down the road. The reality is that it's a different year, a State program in the Football Championship Subdivision into a championship in the Southwestern Athletic Conference.

Hopson reshaped the coaching staff at Southern Miss, with receivers coach John Wozniak and running backs coach Lytrel Pollard the lone holdovers.

Offensively, the Golden Eagles will continue to run a spread scheme under first-year coordinator Shannon Dawson, though the unit will have to replace both starting tackles (Rashod Hill, Norman Price), one of two 1,000-yard rushers (Jalen Richard, 1,113 yards/14 touchdowns) and two receivers (Michael Thomas, Casey Martin), who combined for 44.7 percent of the receptions, 50.2 percent of the receiving yardage and 50.2 percent of the receiving touchdowns.

Defensively, Southern Miss will align in a 4-2-5 scheme under first-year coordinator Tony Pecosaro, featuring a hybrid safety/linebacker position. The unit will have to replace five of its top 11 tacklers, including two starting linebackers (Brian Anderson, Anthony Swain), two starting defensive linemen (Michael Smith, Andrew Bolton) and an All-C-USA cornerback (Kalan Reed).

"But that's football," Hopson said. "That's the beautiful thing about football. It's always another guy's time. Each year's a new year, and it's another guy's time to step up."

And Southern Miss has plenty of pop returning as well, starting with senior quarterback Nick Mullens.

Mullens, a 6-foot-1, 196-pound native lists and was voted the 2016 Conference USA Preseason Offensive Player of the Year.

"We can sit here for two hours, and I can sing his praises," Hopson said. "Nick's a great player, and it's great to have a senior quarterback. That's always a big plus."

The offense also returns junior running back Ito Smith, who was a first-team all-conference preseason selection after leading Southern Miss with 1,128 yards rushing and ranking second in the league with an average 134.0 all-purpose yards per game.

The Golden Eagles also return the interior of their offensive line, including All-C-USA center Cameron Tom, senior guard Brandon Farmer and junior guard Devon Farrior.

The Jaguars made a minor move on Tuesday after losing Jacksonville native Rashod Hill to the Minnesota Vikings.

Hill was signed off the practice squad by the Vikings. He had been with the team since joining the Jaguars as an undrafted free agent in May. Hill was waived during final cuts in September and was added to the practice squad.

Hill was promoted to the active roster in Week 3 but did not appear in the game against the Baltimore Ravens. He was waived again and re-signed to the practice roster.

The Ed White High School alum will now join a Vikings roster with several injuries along the offensive line.

Jaguars sign Uzdavinis to practice squad

Hill's replacement will be rookie offensive tackle Arturo Uzdavinis. The 6-foot-6, 295-pound lineman signed with the Houston Texans as an undrafted free agent in May. He was waived by the Texans on Aug. 30.

Uzdavinis recently spent a week on the Chicago Bears practice squad.

The Minnesota Vikings official placed offensive tackle Jake Long in injured reserve and have signed free agent Rashod Hill to take his spot on the roster.

As expected, the Achilles tendon injury to Minnesota Vikings offensive tackle Jake Long proved to be serious. In fact, the team has made the move to put the former #1 overall draft pick on injured reserve, effectively ending his season.

 However, the Vikings weren't done there. They also made the announcement that offensive tackle Rashod Hill was added to the team's main roster to take the vacant spot left by placing Long on IR.

 The announcement was made on the team's official Twitter account today, verifying that the transactions were indeed made:

<https://twitter.com/Vikings/status/798661545714597888>

For those not familiar with Rashod Hill, here is a little background info on him from the official website of the Minnesota Vikings:

“Hill, who joined Jacksonville as a rookie free agent in May, was signed off the Jaguars practice squad to Minnesota's 53-man roster. He spent one game this season on the active roster of his hometown team but did not play against Baltimore. More from The Viking Age 6 biggest draft steals in Minnesota Vikings history Former Vikings first-round pick could reportedly return to NFC North Bears analyst has extremely embarrassing Kirk Cousins take 6 Vikings who (maybe) won't make the 53-man roster in 2023 Predicting what the Vikings will do in the 2023 NFL Draft based on 2022 Hill (6-foot-6, 303 pounds) helped Ed White High School win the 2010 District 4-4A Championship before playing at Southern Miss. He started at left tackle for three seasons for the Golden Eagles. In 2015, Hill helped Southern Miss average 509.5 yards per game (12th in the nation) and garnered Second-Team All-Conference USA recognition.”

Hill could get some looks due to the unbelievably short list of talent available to the Vikings right now. However, it is still expected that Jeremiah Sirles and T.J. Clemmings will get the nod as the starters until another change is made.

EDEN PRAIRIE, Minn. -- Ownership, coaches, players, fans and we so-called experts aren't quite sure what to make of the Minnesota Vikings as they head an hour south for their 52nd and final training camp in Mankato, Minn.

"Expectations?" said head coach Mike Zimmer. "I don't address (outside) expectations. I just talk to them about getting better every day."

By this time next year, the Vikings will have moved into their luxurious new headquarters in the Twin Cities. They announced this week that they will hold future training camps there, breaking a relationship with Minnesota State Mankato that goes back to the early years of the franchise.

So, what will happen between now and then? Will the Vikings resemble the 2015 team that went 11-5 and wrestled the NFC North away from Green Bay's stranglehold on the final week of that season? Or will they look more like the 2016 team that slumped to 8-8 as injuries mounted offensively and fatigue overtook the defense?

Well, a lot depends on health, obviously. And much depends on whether the Vikings have finally assembled a strong, durable offensive line. They invested mightily in that area, signing starting tackles Riley Reiff and Mike Remmers in free agency and adding potential starting center Pat Elflein with a third-round draft pick. Whether Reiff and Remmers are the answer or just a pair of subpar castoffs from other teams will go a long way in determining the Vikings' chances of reaching Super Bowl LII in their home stadium in February.

Quarterback Sam Bradford and offensive coordinator Pat Shurmur also are key figures with quarterback Teddy Bridgewater expected to start the season on PUP and probably miss a second straight year because of his knee injury. Last season, Bradford was acquired a week before the season and was the starter in Week 2. Meanwhile, Shurmur was elevated to offensive coordinator after Norv Turner quit after the seventh game. Together, Bradford and Shurmur worked in an offense that was devastated by injuries to the line and running back Adrian Peterson.

by injuries to the line and running back Adrian Peterson.

Peterson is gone and will return as a New Orleans Saint when the Vikings open the regular season at home on Monday Night Football. The run-first mentality also is gone as Peterson's replacements - rookie Dalvin Cook and free-agent acquisition Latavius Murray - come in with a more versatile skillset.

Defensively, the Vikings have young, All-Pro potential at all three levels. But they need the offense to step it up in order to avoid the same kind of late-season collapse that plagued a worn-out defense a year ago.

Zimmer won't come out and say it, but he expects the Vikings to return to the playoffs and actually win their first postseason game since January of 2010, when Brett Favre was their starting quarterback.

ADVERTISEMENT - CONTINUE READING BELOW

"I think these guys are very aware of a lot of the things we're trying to teach," Zimmer said during minicamp in June. "I think they're in a good place right now. Sometimes you just get here and run plays, but you're not learning how to play the game.

"We've progressed to the part now where we're trying to learn how to play

"We've progressed to the part now where we're trying to learn how to play games, trying to learn how to play at the end of games, how to play with the clock, without the clock, with the ball or without the ball because I think that's going to be important when we come down to starting getting into the real stuff."

TOP THREE TRAINING CAMP GOALS

--Develop a cohesive offensive line. The Vikings made tackle their priority in free agency, and then they used a third-round draft pick on Ohio State center/guard Pat Elflein. Riley Reiff is the left tackle. Mike Remmers is the right tackle. Alex Boone, last year's prized free-agent signing, is the left guard. And Joe Berger most likely will be the right guard. The battle for center is between Nick Easton and Elflein. That needs to be decided early enough so that the offensive line - the weak link for a few years now - can grow together.

--Establish balance offensively. Adrian Peterson is gone. And with him goes the run-first mentality. Offensive coordinator Pat Shurmur wants to throw the ball more. Quarterback Sam Bradford, who last year set the NFL record for passing percentage despite arriving via trade a week before the season, has had the offseason to get more comfortable with his receivers. But they have to take the next step at full speed as the offensive line and running game come together. Running backs Dalvin Cook and Latavius Murray are younger and more versatile than Peterson, which means they'll be able to be a factor in the passing game as well. They also should be able to add some pop to a running game that ranked last in the league as Peterson sat with injuries for all but three games.

with injuries for all but three games.

--Find the nickel corner. Defensively, the Vikings have a few holes to fill from last season. They'll need a new weak-side linebacker to replace the retired Chad Greenway. They'll need to settle on a three-technique tackle now that Sharrif Floyd's career is in jeopardy after missing all but last year's opener. And there's a transition at left end, where young superstar-in-the-making Danielle Hunter most likely will take the starting job from veteran Brian Robison. But the No. 1 position to keep an eye on is at nickel corner, where the team lost Captain Munnerlyn to free agency. The team used its second-round draft pick a year ago on Munnerlyn's replacement, Mackensie Alexander. Alexander has the talent, but still needs to prove he has the discipline and willingness to be coached. If he can't handle it, soon-to-be 39-year-old Terence Newman could be the nickel back. It appears that 2014 first-round pick Trae Waynes is ready to step in as the starter at Newman's left corner position.

MANKATO, Minn. (WCCO) -- When the Vikings picked up Rashod

Frost l

MANKATO, Minn. (WCCO) – When the Vikings picked up Rashod Hill late last season, little did they know he'd spend the first five days of training camp as the starting left tackle.

"Somebody go down in a split second, you got to be ready to play," Hill said.

Hill spent nearly all of last season on Jacksonville's practice squad before he was signed by the Vikings on Nov. 15, so the fact that he's now already in line to be the starting left tackle in the event of an injury is some pretty quick development.

"Well he's very talented, long arms, big, strong hands. He still needs to correct the finer details of the things he's doing, because he might have four good plays and then he'll have one that's just sloppy and he needs to fix them," coach Mike Zimmer said.

"Every day is an interview, so you got to go out there and try to compete every day," Hill said.

"Just trying to minimize my mistakes, like if he tell me to do something I try to go back in there and look at it. I look at the film before we watch it in the meeting rooms. Critique my own self and be hard on my own self, because I know what they expect and what they want. Jacksonville coach wanted something different, I know what coach Sparano want. He want his style of play, so whatever he want, I'm going to try and go out here and do what I can do."

And the Vikings really need him to do it well.

Well, that's good, at least. But hey...after all the injuries this team dealt with on the offensive line last season, can you blame us for getting a little jumpy?

Original story follows below.

Sadly, it appears that the Minnesota Vikings are getting another early start on the offensive line injuries this season, with a potential big one coming out of Saturday night's scrimmage in Mankato.

Rashod Hill, who had been running with the 1s at left tackle with the injury to Riley Reiff, appears to have suffered a leg injury in the scrimmage this evening.

The injury came on a run play for Dalvin Cook where it appeared...reportedly (since I'm not actually there or anything)...that Hill got his leg rolled up on by a group of people. He was down on the ground in pain for a period of time, but appeared to get up on his feet and move around a little bit before he got onto a cart and was taken off the field.

Magic Rooter & Plumbing ✓

Alma H. said: "I don't typically write reviews, but I must say I'm extreme happy with Manny's..."

Hill got some significant time in last year's regular season finale against the Chicago Bears, and put together a pretty solid performance. After Reiff hurt his back on the first day of Training Camp, Hill stepped in as his replacement and has reportedly held up pretty well, considering that he goes against Everson Griffen every day in practice.

With the offensive line depth being a little thin, if Hill is significantly injured, it could end up being a massive deal for the Vikings. As we get more news on the injury, we will bring it to you.

MINNEAPOLIS — Latavius Murray rushed for 95 yards and two touchdowns, Adam Thielen turned a short catch into a 65-yard score, and the Minnesota Vikings smothered the NFL's highest-scoring offense in a 24-7 win over the Los Angeles Rams on Sunday.

Case Keenum completed 27 of 38 passes for 280 yards and no turnovers against the team that benched him last season for No. 1 overall draft pick Jared Goff. He also guided the Vikings (8-2) to their sixth straight victory in a matchup of division leaders.

Minnesota's defense started the second half by forcing four punts in a row by the Rams (7-3), whose four-game winning streak in which they scored 144 points was finished in convincing fashion. The Rams led the league entering the weekend with a third-down conversion rate of 46.7 percent, but were just 3 for 11 against the Vikings.

Vikings stick with Rashod Hill at right tackle against Eagles despite late struggles vs. Cameron Jordan, Saints

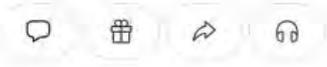

By Andrew Krammer

Vikings right tackle Rashod Hill has a tough matchup ahead of him Sunday at Philadelphia, where Eagles sack leader Brandon Graham has disrupted offenses.

Hill will start his ninth game for the Vikings in Sunday's NFC Championship Game, with Minnesota expected to maintain the starting offensive line that puts Mike Remmers at left guard. Hill said he is wary of Graham's speed around the edge, especially after Hill admitted he gave up a handful of pressures against Saints defensive end Cameron Jordan last weekend.

"They wait until they push the pocket [up the middle]," Hill said, "and then come around and try to get sacks off the edge. Graham is a good player, been playing for a long time. I've got a pretty good game plan for him."

The 6-6 Hill is focused on staying low with the 6-2 Graham and not getting his outside hand swatted away during Graham's speed rushes. Speed has helped Graham rack up a career-high 9½ sacks. The Vikings say Hill started well in the victory against the Saints before surrendering a few pressures to Jordan in the second half.

"It's going to be a tough matchup for him," coach Mike Zimmer said. "What I'd like for him to do is play like he did at the beginning of the ballgame. I thought he played great the first 30-some plays. Then he kind of hit a little snag, had to get readjusted again. Just be consistent, continue to do it every time."

Injury report

Vikings safety Andrew Sendejo (concussion), receiver Adam Thielen (lower back) and cornerback Mackensie Alexander (rib/illness) were listed questionable. The good news is Sendejo was a full participant in Friday's practice and could be medically cleared before Sunday's kickoff.

Thielen looked "questionable" in Friday's practice, Zimmer said, while dealing with a low back injury suffered against the Saints. Alexander was held out of practice Friday, with an illness added to his list of ailments.

Safety Anthony Harris and receivers Michael Floyd, Jarius Wright and Laquon Treadwell are in line for bigger roles should Sendejo or Thielen be limited or held out.

Indoor practice

The Vikings practiced indoors all three days at Winter Park in preparation for Sunday's NFC title game at Lincoln Financial Field. The weather shouldn't be much of a factor Sunday with forecasts calling for a high of 51 degrees and low winds. However, Zimmer indicated the Vikings wanted to practice outside this week but weren't able because of their own field conditions.

"The field wasn't in good enough shape," Zimmer said.

Coaches and players have prepared for sloppy field conditions in Philadelphia after watching the Falcons and Eagles slip around last weekend. The Vikings could change to extra-studded cleats in preparation.

"We got our cleats ready for that," Hill said.

Shamar Stephen (knee) has been ruled out, meaning the Vikings are down to one available backup defensive tackle in rookie Jaleel Johnson. Johnson has played 41 defensive snaps this season (4.1 percent) and said he's eager to "contribute to this win."

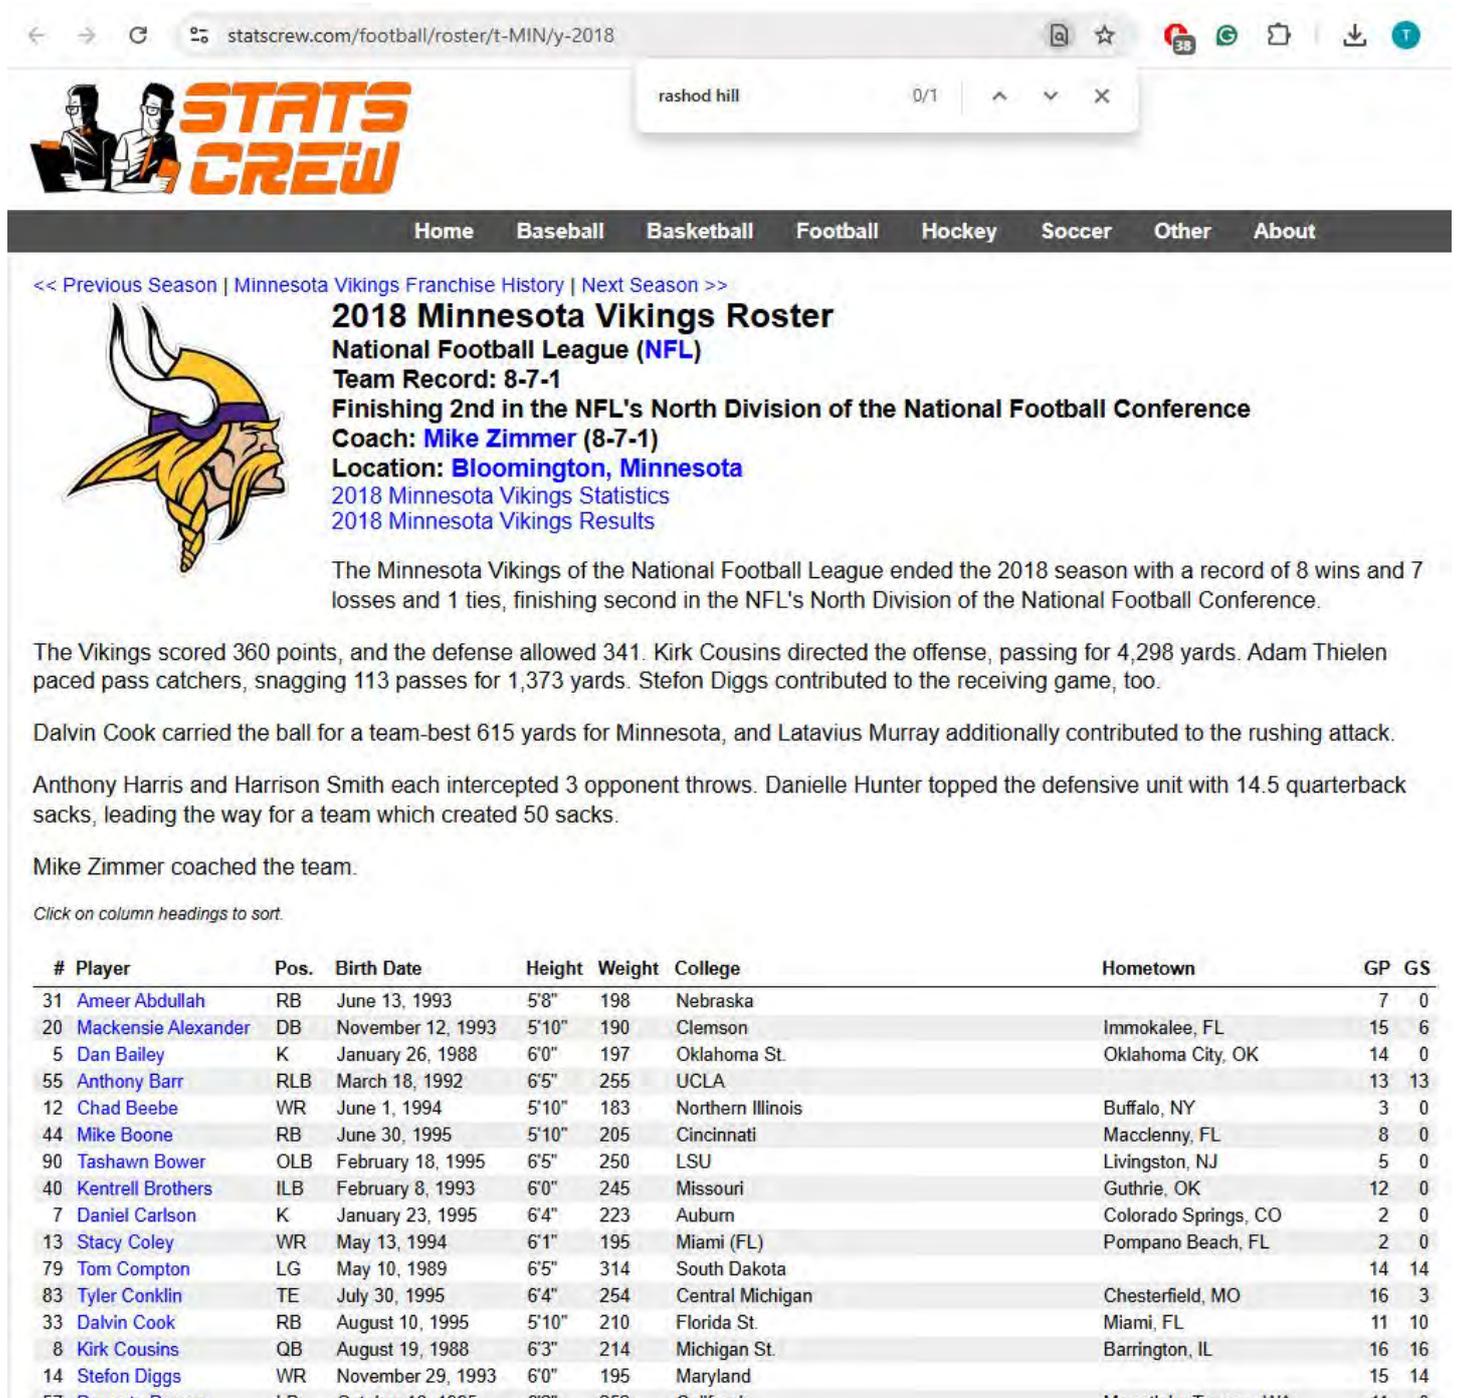

"It's going to require a lot of discipline," Johnson said. "It's a huge game for this team, and I'm excited to go out and really contribute to this win."

The Minnesota Vikings of the National Football League ended the 2018 season with a record of 8 wins and 7 losses and 1 tie, finishing second in the NFL's North Division of the National Football Conference.

The Vikings scored 360 points, and the defense allowed 341. Kirk Cousins directed the offense, passing for 4,298 yards. Adam Thielen paced pass catchers, snagging 113 passes for 1,373 yards. Stefon Diggs contributed to the receiving game, too.

Dalvin Cook carried the ball for a team-best 615 yards for Minnesota, and Latavius Murray additionally contributed to the rushing attack.

Anthony Harris and Harrison Smith each intercepted 3 opponent throws. Danielle Hunter topped the defensive unit with 14.5 quarterback sacks, leading the way for a team which created 50 sacks.

Mike Zimmer coached the team.

As usual, the Vikings will bring 16 offensive linemen into camp and keep just over half of them. This season, there's really only one position up for grabs, but it could be either right guard or right tackle, depending on what they want to do with Mike Remmers. That means that both guards and tackles are competing for a potential start. Not to mention the loss of Joe Berger and Jeremiah Sirles creating opportunities for younger hopefuls. This season, the Vikings are committing even more fully to a zone scheme, which requires everyone to be lean and agile – by big OL standards, at least.

Rashod Hill

Rashod Hill is a well-known name to most Vikings fans, but he faces his most valuable opportunity yet in 2018. After a year on Jacksonville's practice squad, Hill declined the Jaguars' offer and chose to pursue a better opportunity in Minnesota. He showed out in the final, meaningless game of 2016. In the ensuing preseason, Hill managed to kick T.J. Clemmings out of the backup tackle role for good, solidifying himself in that spot for 2017, starting 7 games and playing in 11. He's entering 2018 on a new conditioning grind, hoping to match up better with what the Vikings want in a tackle.

Hill now gets to compete for the starting right tackle job outright, blowing his pre-draft expectations away. He's unlikely to beat out Mike Remmers, but if he shows himself to be a better tackle than anyone else is at guard, Remmers could move to RG and give Hill the start. This is arguably the most likely scenario. He's also in direct competition with Brian O'Neill for this spot for the long term. The question about Hill isn't whether he can hit is ceiling, at this point, it's how high the 26-year old's ceiling can go.

Brian O'Neill

The 2nd round pick out of Pitt has a familiar story – O'Neill played tight end in college until moving to left tackle, but his athleticism allowed him to flourish. So an inexperienced but athletic tackle convert from Pitt may be a familiar sight, but O'Neill has more to boast about. He was still used as a sneaky weapon in clever Pittsburgh play designs and relishes those opportunities. But to become a good left tackle, O'Neill had to put on roughly 35 pounds, eating five to six daily meals including 3 A.M. peanut butter and jelly sandwiches to bulk up. But he produced well in college and his natural athletic talent earned him a high draft pick, and thus, a chance to be the Vikings' future at the position.

Prev 1 Next Actions Search high draft pick, and thus, a chance to be the Vikings future at the position.

O'Neill will compete in the short term for the starting right tackle job or even swing tackle duties. Either way, he and Rashod Hill will start in direct competition and with the same immediate stakes. However, in the long term, O'Neill will have a chance to take long-term right tackle duties away from Mike Remmers or even left tackle duties from Riley Reiff. If he can be a successful in pass protection in the pros as he was in college, O'Neill has the tools to be an NFL mainstay. In this preseason, watching two possible right tackles trying to gain weight and lose weight respectively will be fascinating.

Tom Compton

Compton is known as a native of Rosemount, MN and friend of Kirk Cousins. They grew that friendship after Washington took a chance on the small school flyer out of South Dakota. He spent some time on Washington's practice squad, ultimately earning starting honors in the midst of a problematic 2014 season. He followed Kyle Shanahan to Atlanta (where Kirk Cousins went to Falcons playoff games to cheer him on), then took a detour through Chicago before reuniting with Cousins in Minnesota.

Compton is eyeing a starting spot again as he continues to scratch and claw his way out of the hole that his small school reputation put him in. He brings a baseline to the right guard position - no young players will play until they're better than Tom Compton. He'll mostly compete as a right guard, but his experience at right tackle gives him an all-but-certain path to the roster. Compton has a chance to fend off younger late-round players and start, or play in the place of whoever gets injured.

Colby Gossett

Gossett is the latest in a string of Appalachian State Mountaineer linemen to go pro, in part, he says, thanks to a "nasty" mentality on the field. While he was exclusively a right guard for 46 consecutive starts, coaches tried him at left guard at the Senior Bowl, allowing him to prove an extra dimension of flexibility. This, in addition to his school's reputation, was enough to get him drafted. It's hard to say if he would have been drafted higher had he gotten opportunities with a bigger school, but App State was clearly kind enough to get him this far. A lot of players end up having their careers derailed by an injury or problematic roster dogging, but Gossett proved immune to such issues.

While many day 3 rookies are simply hoping for a spot on the team, Gossett has landed in a spot where he can aim higher. This may not be because of a disconnect between his skill and his draft position, but rather, the room he's entering. With only four of the five starting linemen decided, and only castoffs and other late round youngsters in front of him, there's a non-negligible chance Gossett

Colby Gossett

Gossett is the latest in a string of Appalachian State Mountaineer linemen to go pro, in part, he says, thanks to a "nasty" mentality on the field. While he was exclusively a right guard for 46 consecutive starts, coaches tried him at left guard at the Senior Bowl, allowing him to prove an extra dimension of flexibility. This, in addition to his school's reputation, was enough to get him drafted. It's hard to say if he would have been drafted higher had he gotten opportunities with a bigger school, but App State was clearly kind enough to get him this far. A lot of players end up having their careers derailed by an injury or problematic roster clogging, but Gossett proved immune to such issues.

While many day 3 rookies are simply hoping for a spot on the team, Gossett has landed in a spot where he can aim higher. This may not be because of a disconnect between his skill and his draft position, but rather, the room he's entering. With only four of the five starting linemen decided, and only castoffs and other late round youngsters in front of him, there's a non-negligible chance Gossett ends up earning the starting right guard job. It's wide open competition, but even if he loses he'll have a chance to earn a depth role. A disastrous preseason could end with him being cut, but it would require him to fall beneath some surprising names.

Danny Isidora

Last year, Isidora was simply another day 3 rookie vying for a spot. He was the only good lineman on an otherwise dismal Miami unit, and eventually settled in the depth of the interior line, even starting a few games and putting some tape out there. He dealt with a litany of setbacks during his college career, including coach firings, injuries and never quite gaining momentum until his senior year. But once he finally got a decent opportunity, he excelled enough to end up in the NFL. The Vikings drafted him, and kept him on as a backup.

Now, Isidora's role has a chance to expand. If he can outplay Tom Compton and Colby Gossett, he could start at right guard. Unfortunately, he also has to outplay Hill and O'Neill to keep Mike Remmers at right tackle. If Isidora is to get playing time, he'll need to show he's grown beyond his depth-level pedigree. Like many others, a catastrophic preseason could leave him outside the final roster, but it would be a surprise. As for now, Isidora is a de facto Viking with the opportunity to be even more.

1. The right side of the offensive line

The Vikings open 2018 with the offensive line being arguably their worst position group. Veteran guard/center Joe Berger retired, which leaves a massive void at a positional group already desperate for help. Berger had been with the Vikings for the last seven seasons, and only missed two total snaps in 2017.

Nick Easton, a reliable left guard, suffered a broken ankle in Week 16. The third-year pro may have an uphill battle gaining back his full strength before the 2018 season starts, although he'll likely assume the starting spot on the left side.

So who will protect the right interior against some of the most lethal defensive linemen in the league? After all, the Vikings' interior will face Jurrell Casey, DeForest Buckner, Mike Daniels, Kenny Clark, Aaron Donald, Ndamukong Suh, Fletcher Cox, Cameron Jordan and Akiem Hicks – all of whom are Pro Bowl-caliber players that line up inside.

However it shakes out, the Vikings will need someone to step up.

Former Jag Hill now a key piece for Vikings

Ed White alum could wind up as starting right tackle

EAGAN, Minn. — Rashod Hill still remembers the day the Jaguars called to offer him a $10,000 signing bonus along with the chance to get his NFL career started.

It felt like big-time money then. It feels like ages ago now.

An undrafted practice squad player vying for an opportunity two years ago in Jacksonville, Hill is now slated to be the starting right tackle for the Minnesota Vikings, charged with protecting quarterback Kirk Cousins and opening running lanes for tailback Dalvin Cook.

"Coming from a $10,000 signing bonus to the active roster is a long way," said Hill, who was a local standout at Ed White before he played in college at Southern Mississippi. "You've got to have a mental toughness. I learned that at a young age. My mom and dad always taught me to have a mental toughness."

At 6-foot-6 and 313 pounds, the 26-year-old Hill is possibly the biggest reason for optimism along a Vikings offensive line that has been hit with injuries this preseason. Minnesota has already placed left guard Nick Easton on injured reserve, and center Pat Elflein remains on the physically unable to perform list.

Easton's injury led the Vikings to sign guard Kaleb Johnson, a teammate of Hill's at Ed White.

"It is really good to see an old friend," Hill said. "Kaleb and I grew up together. It's good to see him here. It really is."

It's possible that Hill will miss Saturday's preseason game against the Jaguars because of a minor injury after he got tangled up with nose tackle Linval Joseph in practice earlier this week.

But his prognosis for the start of the regular season is full steam ahead.

"He's an extremely athletic guy that has been getting better and better," Vikings coach Mike Zimmer said. "Sometimes later in the game his concentration leaves him a little bit, so that's where we'll have to extend him more plays so he gets used to doing those things. He's done a really nice job."

Hill believes he could have become this sort of player for the Jaguars, but it never worked out that way.

He originally signed with his hometown team as a rookie free agent prior to the 2016 season and was briefly elevated to the Jaguars' 53-man roster that year. The Vikings plucked him off the Jaguars' practice squad later that season, and he went on to appear in 11 games and make seven starts (six at right tackle, one at left tackle) in 2017.

One person who isn't surprised by Hill's steady progress: Doug Marrone, who was the Jaguars' offensive line coach in 2016 until he was named interim coach later in the season.

"He busted his butt every day in practice when he was on the scout team and did those things," Marrone said. "He had the ingredients to give himself an opportunity to play in this league, and when I put on a tape and I see it, I am happy for him. I really am."

Advertisement

Things could get even better for Hill if he has another solid season. He's set to earn a base salary of $630,000 in 2018 and will be a restricted free agent after this year. Continue to improve and he'll have a big payday waiting at some point.

Certainly, that money will help pay off the house that Hill and his wife, Tara, are planning to purchase sometime next year. Hill said they might buy in Jacksonville, but they are also considering a place in Alpharetta, Ga.

One item Hill knows will make the trip either way is the Jaguars' color rush jersey he has from 2016. For now, that is hanging up in Hill's guest bedroom, and he plans to eventually get it framed.

"Jacksonville will always be the place that I'm from and that's where I got my first opportunity," Hill said. "It will always have a special place in my heart."

Maybe so, but Hill will be all business if he suits up with Minnesota's first-team offense Saturday against the Jaguars.

Advertisement

He was in Jacksonville long enough to see how impressive defensive end Yannick Ngakoue was as a rookie. And Hill know the rest of the defense can provide problems, too.

"They paid and got their defense right," Hill said. "We all know that. We ain't stupid."

Hill expecting to return after two injury missteps

by John Holler
Sep 25, 2018

Minnesota Vikings offensive tackle Rashod Hill has come a long way in the past couple of years. Two years ago at this time, he was on the practice squad of the Jacksonville Jaguars hoping to get a chance to prove he belonged in the NFL.

In Minnesota, 2016 saw an offensive line decimated by injuries and different line combinations being forced together throughout the year. Hill made enough of an impression that he carved out a role for himself in 2017, starting six games at right tackle and one at left tackle as injuries again hit the O-line, as well as starting both of Minnesota's playoff games.

In his first two seasons, Hill was the guy who stepped in when others were injured. Now, he is the starter who has had to be replaced in each of the last two games due to an ankle injury, which has been more than a little frustrating.

Vikings Encourage Youth at Hennepin County JDC

Oct 18, 2018 at 09:13 AM

Lindsey Young
Writer & Editor

MINNEAPOLIS – Eric Kendricks wore a wide smile and his white practice jersey as he walked into a classroom with teammate Rashod Hill and surprised eight young men.

The room was small but vibrant. Posters and photographs covered previously bleak walls, and a quote from Martin Luther King, Jr., was projected onto the whiteboard:

"Our lives begin to end the day we become silent about things that matter."

A stack of colorful poetry books sat on the desk, filled with verses and poignant words penned by youth staying at the Hennepin County Juvenile Detention Center.

The young men wore matching gray sweatsuits and navy blue shoes, but animated personalities and character set each one apart as they asked questions of the professional athletes who were guests in their English class.

Was it hard for you to keep up in school and football? What made you want to play football? Do you like this cold weather? ... Are there times you feel like quitting?

"They just wanted to ask questions; they're just like normal kids, you know? They're curious about what we do, and just being there was good," said Kendricks, who jumped at the chance to spend time at the JDC. "I don't think those kids have a lot of people visiting very often. So any time they get visitors, you can just tell that they're high-energy, excited.

"Just us being there and supporting them, they know that they have someone who cares about them, someone looking after them," Kendricks added. "It was just a good thing."

He and Hill shared their own stories and openly answered questions before going down to a courtyard to play catch with the youth.

"I like to give back because, when I grew up, I saw the Jacksonville Jaguars players come around, and they gave back and always were positive," Hill told the class. "They gave their old cleats to us in high school to wear when we didn't have any cleats. I always saw them give back; they always took time out during their busy schedule to come out."

Kendricks and Hill were two of 10 Vikings players who visited the Juvenile Detention Center Tuesday afternoon to spend time in various classrooms talking to the young people, encouraging them and sharing advice.

The players were grouped into pairs: safeties Harrison Smith and Jayron Kearse; defensive ends Danielle Hunter and Stephen Weatherly; safety George Iloka and tackle Brian O'Neill; linebacker Anthony Barr and wide receiver Brandon Zylstra, who also were joined by Vikings Legend Greg Coleman.

Hennepin JDC Superintendent Craig Riggs addressed the group beforehand and thanked the Vikings for their partnership and work in the community. A 36-year employee of the JDC, Riggs expressed his passion for the youth he works with.

"As far as programming, people think jail ... they think incarceration. But that's not what we're about," Riggs explained. "Kids make bad decisions. Why do kids make bad decisions? Most of our kids have had some kind of trauma in their life. A lot of trauma often influences decisions that kids make. What we do in our department is from detention, to our treatment facilities, to probation. It's all about, 'What services can we provide our kids so they make those better decisions in life?' "

"Decisions" was exactly the word that Iloka hoped the young women in his science class would remember.

The period started with a fun, sports-related lesson about calculating one's BMI but then moved into a Q&A and some real talk with the pair of teammates.

Iloka has only been with the Vikings since August, but he is passionate about but then moved into a Q&A and se rashod hill 0/1

Iloka has only been with the Vikings since August, but he is passionate about speaking to the young people at the juvenile detention center in his hometown of Houston. When he heard of the visit to the Hennepin County location Tuesday, he was excited for the opportunity.

Iloka reminded the class that decisions made at a young age can affect you as an adult. He added that it's important to focus on the future rather than the past.

"It's still about the decisions moving forward. It's always about the next decisions," Iloka said. "You can't change the past decisions; you can't change past actions; but you can always control what you do going forward. And that was kind of like the overlaying message for me and O'Neill.

"They might have gotten something out of this, hopefully, but I feel like I got just as much out of it personally," Iloka added.

In a nearby World History class, Hunter and Weatherly spent time talking with the students before moving into an interactive project. Instructor Jeremy Johnson challenged the group to analyze a political cartoon negatively portraying the continent of Africa and asked them to redesign their own cartoon to flip the narrative.

In the background of the young men hard at work, U.S. Bank Stadium towered just across the street.

Johnson considers it an honor to teach at the JDC and was grateful for the Vikings investing their time.

"These [players] are clearly role models for the guys that are here. Just having their presence in the classroom today is something that I can tell is actually motivating them," Johnson said. "They're interested in a topic, they're interested in what these guys do, and they're interested in what they can possibly learn from them. It's nice when you can get somebody from the community to come in, especially when that big, beautiful stadium is right across the street, and then you get the actual guys who play in it to come visit, coach and help train and give good advice. It's a good thing."

Barr, Zylstra and Coleman spent time connecting with and encouraging young women in a math class.

There, the message also revolved around not defining oneself by a poor choice. Barr, whose Raise the Barr Foundation supports single mothers, urged the teenage girls to not be caught up in the opinions of others.

"It's how you view yourself. Can you look in the mirror and be proud of what you see?" Barr asked them. "[Remember that] failing is part of the process. You have to fail to be able to succeed. You have to fail to become what you want to be, to become better.

"I've failed more than I've succeeded – that's a fact," Barr continued. "But the reason why those successes are so important and feel so good is because of going through all those experiences of failure. I think that's the biggest thing I've learned ... It's OK to fail and mess up. Just try not to do it too often. Try to learn from it. Don't make the same mistake twice."

Barr later said how much he appreciated the productive dialogue and hearing some of the young people's backgrounds, journeys and aspirations.

"They're kind of going through ... a learning experience but also expressed that it's only a minor bump in the road," Barr said. "The group I was with, the group of girls, they were very outgoing, very bright and they have bright futures ahead of them if they continue on the path that they're on. If they continue trying to improve their situation."

Riggs stood in the back of the classroom and observed the students asking questions and hanging on every word the three Vikings shared.

Riggs pointed out that at some point, the jerseys disappear and the youth focus only on the fact that they're being listened to and valued.

"And that's what it's all about. It's, 'I was where you are.' And, 'We all make choices, and sometimes they aren't the right choices, but we correct those choices. We don't define our life by one mistake,' " Riggs said. "And Greg Coleman talked about that. I think that really hit home for a lot of those kids. It's like, right now it's a bump in the road, but that doesn't necessarily mean they can't change and make different choices. I'm going to again quote Greg, and it's, 'Follow your dreams.' That's what it's all about here."

While all the players invested in and enjoyed the afternoon, perhaps the visit hit home most for Kears, who said there was "no question" he would attend when he heard about the opportunity.

For Kears, it was personal.

"When you see a kid get in trouble like that, you immediately think he's a bad kid, but I was in that situation before – I've been down that road," Kears said. "So it was good for me to go out there, talk to them and just show them, 'If you get your mind together, if you act right, there's always another way.'"

"I sat down with them and just let them know the whole thing. I let them know, 'I'm not just someone in here who hasn't been through it – I've been through what you guys are going through.' " Kears added. "You kind of see it differently what you guys are going through,' " Kearsse added. "You kind of see it differently when you've seen someone who's been through the same thing, and he's doing good now. It was big for me to go there and talk to them."

Kearsse said it was important to be genuine with the group and show them what could be accomplished despite making a mistake early in life.

"For them to be around us and talk to us, joke around and play with us, it was good for them," Kearsse said. "And it was good for us to be there."

At the end of the visit, as players talked amongst themselves and departed, it was clear that the afternoon had been impactful across the board.

Kendricks afterward explained his motivation for being involved.

"Growing up. I had some friends or just peers who got in trouble the same way.

VIKINGS-SAINTS GAME INFORMATION

SEAN PAYTON

NFL Head Coach: 12th Year
Overall NFL Experience: 21st Year
Coaching Experience: 30th Year
Overall NFL Record: 117-77 (.603)
Regular Season: 110-72 (.604)
Postseason: 7-5 (.583)
Record with NO: 117-77 (.601)
Record vs. MIN: 4-3 (.571)
College: Eastern Illinois '86

Since he was hired as head coach of the New Orleans Saints in 2006, Sean Payton has established himself as one of the most successful coaches in the NFL. Payton has led the Saints to six playoff berths, four NFC South division titles and in 2009 captured the franchise's first World Championship with a 31-17 win over the Indianapolis Colts in Super Bowl XLIV.

Payton has a 112-76 overall record (.596), including a 7-5 postseason mark (.583) after the franchise had won only one playoff game prior to his arrival. Payton holds the club's top win total and winning percentage for a head coach.

As Payton enters the 2018 campaign he continues to represent the Saints as the model of stability not only within the NFC South, as he is the longest tenured head coach within the division, but also within the National Football League as only New England's Bill Belichick (2000), Cincinnati's Marvin Lewis (2003) and Green Bay's Mike McCarthy (hired one week prior to Payton in 2006) have been with their teams longer. Payton is also one of just eight active coaches to lead a team to a Super Bowl victory. The others are Belichick, Seattle's Pete Carroll, Oakland's Jon Gruden (with Tampa Bay in 2002), Baltimore's John Harbaugh, McCarthy, Philadelphia's Doug Pederson and Pittsburgh's Mike Tomlin.

Payton presided over the NFL's most prolific offense since his arrival, leading the league in net yards per game in 2006, 2008, 2009, 2011, 2014 and 2016, and finishing first in scoring in 2008 and 2009. These are the only six times the Saints have led the NFL in offense. Ranking in the top ten offensively every season since Payton arrived, the Saints have the third-longest streak (12 seasons) in the NFL since the 1970 AFL-NFL merger. In team history, the Saints have scored at least 45 points on 21 separate occasions with 17 of these outputs occurring under Payton's watch, including two in 2017. Defensively, New Orleans has finished in the top five twice (2010 and 2013). He has also sent a total of 44 selections to the Pro Bowl and earned the honor of coaching the NFC squad following the 2006 and 2017 seasons.

The 2017 Saints produced an 11-5 regular season record, producing their first playoff berth since 2013, behind a squad that led by QB Drew Brees offensively and DE Cameron Jordan defensively featured seven players selected to the Pro Bowl, tied for the most in club history and four draft picks selected to the PFWA All-Rookie Team, two more than any other club. In RB Alvin Kamara and CB Marshon Lattimore, the 2017 Saints were the first team to have both the Associated Press NFL Offensive Rookie of the Year and Defensive Rookie of the Year since 1967. New Orleans, one of three NFC South teams to make the postseason, upended Carolina (11-5) and Atlanta (10-6) to finish first in the division and advanced to the Divisional Playoff round after capturing a 31-26 Wild Card victory over the Panthers in the Mercedes-Benz Superdome. The Saints' bid to reach their third NFC Championship game under Payton was cut short in Minnesota, where New Orleans fell to the Vikings 29-24, after coming back from a 17-0 halftime deficit to hold a 24-23 fourth quarter lead during a thrilling battle.

Offensively, New Orleans was the only team to rank in the top five in the NFL in both rushing yards per game (129.4) and net passing yards per game (261.8), while giving up only 20 sacks, the second lowest total in the league and turning the ball over a franchise-low 18 times. Brees was selected to his club-record tenth Pro Bowl as a Saint as he completed 386-of-536 passes (72.0%) with 23 touchdowns, eight interceptions and a 103.9 rating. Brees' completion percentage set an NFL record. His eight picks were his lowest total as a Saint. RBs Mark Ingram II and Alvin Kamara and WR Michael Thomas provided additional highlights on offense. Kamara led the team with 1,544 total yards from scrimmage, seventh in the NFL, as he carried 120 times for 728 yards with eight touchdowns and led NFL running backs in receiving yardage with 82 grabs for 826 yards and five touchdowns. His 6.1 yards per carry led the NFL. Adding a 106-yard kickoff return for a touchdown in Week 17, the longest play in club history, he set the club rookie record for touchdowns (14). Ingram ranked second on the club with 1,540 total yards from scrimmage as he and Kamara became the first running back duo in NFL history to each reach 1,500 yards. Ingram led the team in rushing with 230 carries for a career-high 1,124 yards and career-best 12 touchdowns. Thomas set a club record with 104 receptions for 1,245 yards and five scores. In addition to Brees, Ingram, Kamara and Thomas, RG Larry Warford, a free agent acquisition, also was named to his first Pro Bowl.

The Saints defense saw improvement in virtually every major statistical category. New Orleans moved up ten spots in total defense, including from 32nd to 15th against the pass. After ranking 31st in opponent points per game in 2016, New Orleans moved up to tenth in 2017, surrendering only 20.4 points per game. Led by Jordan, a first-team Associated Press All-Pro who posted a career-high 13 sacks, New Orleans racked up 42 takedowns (tied for seventh in the NFL). Lattimore, who led NFL rookies with five interceptions, joined Jordan as a Pro Bowl selection.

VIKINGS OFFENSE NOTES

FAST START UNDER CENTER

Kirk Cousins has made a quick impact on the Vikings offense and carved a place in the club record books through 5 games. His 40 pass completions vs. Buffalo (9/23) set a new Vikings record and his pair of 400-yard passing games in the opening 5 games ties the team mark in 400-yard games in a season. He set an NFL mark as the 1st QB to complete 30+ passes in 4 consecutive games (at Green Bay - at Philadelphia).

NEW LOOK LINE

The 2017 Vikings line was an overhaul from the previous season and the unit came together quickly. The 2018 version has had to adapt due to injuries but will feature a core of returning vets with experience. The revamped unit helped the 2017 Vikings climb to #11 in NFL offense up from #28 in 2016. The team welcomed back 2017 regular starting center Pat Elflein to the starting lineup for 2018 in the game at Los Angeles. The 2017 All-Rookie honoree started his 1st game of 2018 and helped solidify the line on the road.

UNDRAFTED NOT UNDESERVING

The 2018 Vikings had 3 college free agents make the 53-man roster to start the season and continued a long history of undrafted players who have made an impact on the club. The current roster is highlighted by WR Adam Thielen, who went from undrafted out of Minnesota State, Mankato to earning a practice squad spot as a rookie in 2013 and then a berth in the Pro Bowl in 2017. The Vikings have featured Hall of Famers Mick Tingelhoff and John Randle who came to the team undrafted and earned their places in Canton.

IT'S GOOD FOOTBALL, EH?

The Vikings feature a pair of players who began their pro careers in the CFL. DL Tom Johnson, OL Brett Jones and WR Brandon Zylstra. Jones is a native of Saskatchewan and began his career in his homeland. The Vikings have a tradition of crossover with the CFL, most notably head coach Bud Grant, who played (1953-56) and coached (1957-66) with Winnipeg, winning 4 Grey Cups as coach.

BIGGER'S NOT ALWAYS BETTER

The Vikings have 3 players who have been fighting an uphill battle after playing collegiately at smaller Division II or DIII institutions. Adam Thielen is the Vikings leader among the small-school players with 63 career games and 29 starts. FB C.J. Ham out started as a rookie minicamp college tryout in 2016 and WR Brandon Zylstra is entering his 1st season in the NFL after joining the Vikings after 2 years in the CFL. Zylstra had Vikings connections before joining the team in 2018. He was teammates at Augustana College in Sioux Falls, SD for 2 seasons with Vikings FB C.J. Ham before he transferred to Division III Concordia College in Moorhead, MN, a member fo the Minnesota Intercollegiate Athletic Conference. Minnesota State, Mankato and Augustana are rivals in the Northern Sun Conference where Thielen and Ham continued their days of competition, dating back to high school when Thielen's Detroit Lakes High Lakers and Ham's Duluth Denfeld High Hunters squared off as conference opponents.

VIKINGS OFFENSE NOTES

FAST START UNDER CENTER

Kirk Cousins has made a quick impact on the Vikings offense and carved a place in the club record books through 5 games. His 40 pass completions vs. Buffalo (9/23) set a new Vikings record and his pair of 400-yard passing games in the opening 5 games ties the team mark in 400-yard games in a season. He set an NFL mark as the 1st QB to complete 30+ passes in 4 straight games (at Green Bay - at Philadelphia, Weeks 2-5). In the red zone, Cousins ranks among the NFL's best in 2018.

NEW LOOK LINE

The 2017 Vikings line was an overhaul from the previous season and the unit came together quickly. The 2018 version has had to adapt due to injuries but will feature a core of returning vets with exceptions. Rookie DT Brian O'Neill

UNRAFTED NOT UNDESERVING

The 2018 Vikings had 3 college free agents make the 53-man roster to start the season and continued a long history of undrafted players who have made an impact on the club. The current roster is highlighted by WR Adam Thielen, who went from undrafted out of Minnesota State, Mankato to earning a practice squad spot as a rookie in 2013 and then a berth in the Pro Bowl in 2017. The Vikings have featured Hall of Famers Mick Tingelhoff and John Randle who came to the team undrafted and earned their places in Canton.

IT'S GOOD FOOTBALL, EH?

The Vikings feature a pair of players who began their pro careers in the CFL, DL Tom Johnson, OL Brett Jones and WR Brandon Zylstra. Jones is a native of Saskatchewan and began his career in his homeland. The Vikings have a tradition of crossover with the CFL, most notably head coach Bud Grant, who played (1953-56) and coached (1957-66) with Winnipeg, winning 4 Grey Cups as coach.

2019 VIKINGS HEADSHOTS

WIDE RECEIVERS

Adam Thielen and Stefon Diggs, perhaps the league's best receiving duo, are back after combining for 215 catches, 2,394 yards and 18 touchdowns last season. Thielen's 2018 outing earned the Minnesota native his second career Pro Bowl nod. The pair will continue to pack a 1-2 punch for the foreseeable future, as both have signed extensions with Minnesota.

FRESH FACES: The Vikings drafted a pair of receivers in the seventh round, snagging Dillion Mitchell and Bisi Johnson out of Oregon and Colorado State, respectively. Former Bronco Jordan Taylor signed with Minnesota in free agency, and the Vikings added undrafted free agents Davion Davis and Alexander Hollins.

WHAT TO WATCH: The battle for WR3 promises to be an interesting one. The reps were split during OTAs mainly between Taylor and Chad Beebe, whom the Vikings signed last year as an undrafted free agent. In addition to the group of rookies, fourth-year receiver Laquan Treadwell, Jeff Badet and Brandon Zylstra also remain in the mix.

OFFENSIVE LINE

The Vikings have a new center in town, first-round pick Garrett Bradbury, but Pat Elflein has embraced his role of sliding to left guard. After missing the first two games of the 2018 season while continuing to rehab injuries, Elflein played in the final 14, starting 13 of them. Riley Reiff returns at left tackle alongside the Ohio State standout, and Brian O'Neill, who started 11 games as a rookie in 2018, will remain at right tackle. Rashod Hill, who started eight of 16 games in 2018, is back for his fourth season. Other returners are Aviante Collins, Cornelius Edison, Danny Isidora, Brett Jones and Storm Norton.

FRESH FACES: Minnesota's offensive line will have two new faces in its starting five, with Bradbury, whom the Vikings snagged with the 18th overall pick, and former Titan Josh Kline, who signed with Minnesota as a free agent. Kline seemed solidified at the right guard spot throughout OTAs and minicamp. Another free agency addition was former Jets guard Dakota Dozier. The Vikings traded up to draft Oklahoma's Dru Samia in the fourth round and later selected Elon tackle Oluoameka Udoh in the sixth. Western Michigan center John Keeney joined the group as an undrafted free agent.

WHAT TO WATCH: Bradbury, who won the Rimington Trophy at N.C. State as the nation's best center in 2018, stepped into the starting role from day one and appears confident anchoring the line as a rookie. It will be interesting to see how Minnesota's starting five fare with a new look this season.

DEFENSIVE LINE

The Vikings are returning almost their entire defensive line from last season, including Pro Bowlers Everson Griffen, Danielle Hunter and Linval Joseph. Shamar Stephen has returned to Minnesota after a year away in Seattle and looks poised to start at defensive tackle. Hunter racked up 14.5 sacks over 16 games last season, bringing his career total to 40. Defensive end Stephen Weatherly, who started a career-high six games in 2018, will likely continue to develop in a larger role.

FRESH FACES: The Vikings drafted Boise State standout Alexander Mattison 102nd overall in April. Mattison played three seasons for the Broncos and became the first Boise State player to lead the conference in a season by totaling 1,415 rushing yards as a junior in 2018. The Vikings also signed UDFA fullback Khari Blasingame.

WHAT TO WATCH: If Cook staves away the injuries this season, the sky is the limit for the talented back. With the departure of Latavius Murray in free agency, it will be interesting to see how Abdullah and/or Mattison share responsibility out of the backfield. This spring, running backs coach Kennedy Polamalu called Ham the "perfect fit" at fullback in Minnesota's new offensive system.

TIGHT ENDS

Kyle Rudolph is back for a ninth season in Purple. The Vikings signed Rudolph to an extension in June, just before the team's minicamp. Rudolph finished 2018 with 64 catches for 634 yards and four touchdowns. Tight ends Tyler Conklin and David Morgan are back for their second and fourth seasons, respectively, and Cole Hikutini remains with Minnesota after spending 2018 on the practice squad.

FRESH FACES: The Vikings used their second-round draft pick to select tight end Irv Smith, Jr., out of Alabama. He recorded 58 receptions for 838 yards (14.4 yards per reception) and 10 touchdowns in 38 games for the Crimson Tide. Minnesota also signed undrafted free agent Brandon Dillon.

WHAT TO WATCH: How will Rudolph and Smith be utilized together? The Vikings offense is yet to be fully seen, but Minnesota could implement 12 and 22 personnel packages under Stefanski.

The page features the Stats Crew logo and a navigation menu with options: Home, Baseball, Basketball, Football, Hockey, Soccer, Other, and About. The main content area is titled "2020 Minnesota Vikings Roster" and includes the following information:

- 2020 Minnesota Vikings Roster
- National Football League (NFL)
- Team Record: 7-9
- Finishing 3rd in the NFL's North Division of the National Football Conference
- Coach: Mike Zimmer (7-9)
- Location: Bloomington, Minnesota
- 2020 Minnesota Vikings Statistics
- 2020 Minnesota Vikings Results

The text on the page states: "The Minnesota Vikings of the National Football League ended the 2020 season with a record of 7 wins and 9 losses, finishing third in the NFL's North Division of the National Football Conference." It also provides a summary of the team's performance: "The Vikings scored 430 points, but the leaky defense yielded 475. Kirk Cousins triggered the aerial attack, passing for 4,265 yards. Justin Jefferson paced all receivers, snagging 88 passes for 1,400 yards. Adam Thielen contributed to the receiving game, too." Further details include: "Dalvin Cook carried the ball for a team-best 1,557 yards for Minnesota." and "Harrison Smith intercepted 5 opponent throws. Yannick Ngakoue topped pass rushers with 5 sacks." The coaching staff is listed as "Mike Zimmer coached the team." A note at the bottom of the page says "Click on column headings to sort."

Rashod Hill is returning to the Vikings.

Hill's agent, Brett Tessler, tweeted on Friday night that the swing tackle will be back with the Vikings "despite other offers." It's a one-year deal.

Hill joined the Vikings as a rookie midway through the 2016 season after being signed off Jacksonville's practice squad, and got into one game. He started just one game last season after having started seven times in 2017 and eight times in 2018.

It's not out of the question Hill could be a starter in 2020. If the Vikings move left tackle Riley Reiff to guard and right tackle Brian O'Neill over to replace Reiff, they would need a right tackle.

Vikings To Re-Sign Rashod Hill

March 20th, 2020 at 8:06pm CST by Andrew Ortenberg

Swing tackles are flying off the board left and right. Just moments after Brent Qvale was swooped up by the Texans, we've got word that Rashod Hill will be returning to the Vikings, via his agent Brett Tessler on Twitter. Terms of the deal weren't immediately available.

In his tweet, Tessler notes that Hill had other offers but opted to return to Minnesota. Hill originally signed with the Jaguars as an undrafted free agent in 2016, and was signed by the Vikes off Jacksonville's practice squad later that year. He then started seven games in 2017, and entered 2018 as Minnesota's starting right tackle. He briefly shifted to left tackle for an injured Riley Reiff, and promptly got his job at right tackle taken by a rookie Brian O'Neill.

After getting demoted Hill then spent last year as the team's swing tackle. The Southern Miss product turned 28 in January. There's been some speculation that the Vikings could move on from Reiff this offseason, in which case O'Neill would likely switch to left tackle and Hill could possibly regain a starting job. It's also likely Minnesota would draft a new tackle in that scenario.

Vikings re-sign OT Rashod Hill

The primary backup at the tackle spots is back

Christopher Gates has been the lead writer at The Daily Norseman since the site launched in July of 2006, covering the Minnesota Vikings day in and day out.

On Friday, the Minnesota Vikings finalized their efforts to retain one of their important backups along the offensive line.

Numerous sources have reported that the Vikings agreed to terms with offensive tackle Rashod Hill to return to the team. It is a one-year deal, and the financial terms were not immediately disclosed.

Hill has been with the Vikings since Minnesota grabbed him off of the practice squad of the Jacksonville Jaguars during the 2016 season. Hill played much of the 2016 regular season finale against the Chicago Bears, and between the 2017 and 2018 seasons started in 15 games for the Vikings, seeing time at both tackle spots. He was used as a sixth offensive lineman in "heavy" packages this past season, and is still the primary backup option at both tackle positions.

While the Vikings still have spots to fill on the offensive line, it's nice to have someone like Hill back in the fold. He provides that backup option at both tackle spots, and has enough starting experience where he can be relied on in the event of an injury to start and not be a complete disaster. I'm going to assume that the deal to bring him back isn't going to cost the Vikings a great deal of money.

69 Days Until Vikings Football: Previewing Rashod Hill's 2020 Season

The Vikings' swing tackle could face some competition for that role.

Will Ragatz | Jul 6, 2020

As we count down the days until the Vikings' opener against the Packers on September 13th, InsideTheVikings will be previewing every single player on the roster. The amount of days remaining corresponds with the jersey number of the player being examined on that day. Today is July 6th, and there are 69 days until kickoff for the 2020 regular season. That means our next player preview looks at the Vikings' swing tackle.

Countdown to Vikings-Packers on September 13th: 69 Days

Player Preview: Rashod Hill (No. 69, Offensive Tackle)

- College: Southern Mississippi
- Drafted: 2016 UDFA (Jacksonville Jaguars)
- NFL experience: Four years (2020 will be his fifth season)
- Age: 28 (Birthday was in January)
- Size: 6'6", 313
- 2019 PFF Grade: 62.6

Depth is important at every position in the NFL, but it's particularly crucial on the Depth is important at every position in the NFL, but it's particularly crucial on the offensive line. The big guys up front are colliding with defensive linemen on every single play, and they're at constant risk of a 300-pound man falling on their legs the wrong way or suffering any number of other injuries. That makes Rashod Hill a valuable part of the Vikings' offense, even if the 28-year-old is unlikely to ever become a long-term starter at this point in his career.

Hill has spent the majority of the last few seasons as the Vikings' swing tackle, meaning he's the primary backup at both left and right tackle. It's a difficult job, as he has to be ready to go in on either side at the drop of a hat and face off against dangerous pass rushers. Being able to play on both sides of the line requires fluidity in dropping into pass sets in two opposite ways. Going from the left side to the right – or vice-versa – is a transition that some tackles can really struggle with, which makes Hill's solid play on both sides plenty worthy of a roster spot.

A free agent entering this offseason, Hill was brought back by the Vikings on a one-year, $1.05 million deal. He'll likely continue to occupy that swing tackle role, though he could face competition from an intriguing young player: Oli Udoh, a sixth-round pick in 2019, probably offers more upside and could push for that job with a strong pick in 2019, probably offers more upside and could push for that job with a strong August. Aviante Collins and rookie Blake Brandel will also factor into the equation at the tackle position in training camp.

Hill grew up in Jacksonville, FL and was lightly recruited out of high school; 247Sports ranked him as a two-star recruit and the 109th-best offensive tackle in the class of 2011. He accepted an offer from Southern Mississippi, the alma mater of Brett Favre, and was a three-year starter for the Golden Eagles. During his redshirt senior year, Hill was named second team All-Conference USA.

After going undrafted in 2016, Hill was signed as a college free agent by his hometown Jaguars. After impressing during the preseason, he earned a spot on their practice squad. That November, the Vikings swooped in and signed him to their active roster, and he's been in Minnesota ever since. Hill made his Vikings debut in Week 17 of his rookie year, playing well in place of T.J. Clemmings.

During the next two seasons, injuries caused Hill's name to be called for significant action. He started seven games in 2017, mostly replacing right tackle Mike Remmers. He then played every offensive snap at right tackle in the Vikings' two playoff games

He then played every offensive snap at right tackle in the Vikings' two playoff games that year, with Remmers moving to guard after returning from injury. Hill opened the 2018 season as the Vikings' starting right tackle, then moved to the left side when Riley Reiff got hurt. But with rookie Brian O'Neill playing well, Hill was demoted back to the No. 3 spot on the depth chart when Reiff got healthy. He started eight games in total in 2018, which was his second consecutive season playing over half of the Vikings' offensive snaps.

In 2019, Reiff and O'Neill stayed mostly healthy, and Hill's playing time dropped dramatically as a result.

The scouting report on Hill is that he's a reliable pass protector who doesn't have the athleticism to thrive in the Vikings' outside zone running scheme. Last season, he received PFF's 17th-best pass-blocking grade out of 102 tackles with at least 100 offensive snaps, while his run-blocking grade was 84th. That has been a consistent trend throughout his career, and it's the main reason why the Vikings don't view him as a starting tackle in the NFL.

In 2020, it's possible that the more athletic Udoh pushes Hill for the swing tackle job. However it's also in play that Udoh could compete for a starting role at guard. Either

However, it's also in play that Udoh could compete for a starting role at guard. Either way, Hill's spot on the 53-man roster seems fairly safe, and he'll continue to provide important depth with his ability to win in pass protection reps on both sides of the line.

STATE OF THE VIKINGS

TIGHT ENDS

This position group was the talk of the town this offseason, as many are excited about the potential production that Irv Smith, Jr., and Tyler Conklin could bring to the field in 2021.

Those two are looked at as the leaders of the group after veteran Kyle Rudolph was released due to salary cap restraints this offseason. Smith and Conklin certainly looked the part this spring, as both routinely shined in all aspects of practices.

Smith had 365 yards and five scores in 2020, with many expecting him to top those numbers in his third pro season. Conklin, meanwhile, flashed down the stretch with 15 catches for 168 yards and a touchdown in Minnesota's final four games of the 2020 season.

"I feel like the tight end, you want to be able to move and not only be a threat in the pass game, but in the run game as well [as a blocker]," Smith said. "I feel like me and Conk' are one of the best [duos] at doing that. With that being said, I'm very excited about me and him playing together and having this opportunity."

The battle for the spot behind Smith and Conklin should be a good one. And it's for a key role in the Vikings offense, given how often the team uses multiple tight end sets.

Brandon Dillon has fared well over the past two training camps and could be in line for a larger role in his third professional season.

Zach Davidson has an interesting backstory. The 2021 fifth-round pick played at Central Missouri (Division II) and excelled at both punter and tight end before getting drafted. He may need some time to develop but certainly offers intrigue.

Another Division II player in the room is Shane Zylstra, who is transitioning to the position after a stellar college career as a receiver at Minnesota State, Mankato. Zylstra is the school's all-time leader in career receptions (227).

OFFENSIVE LINE

This position group is always in the spotlight, but no team has devoted as much draft capital to the offensive line than the Vikings in recent years.

Over the past four drafts, Minnesota has taken five offensive linemen on Day 1 or Day 2, the most among NFL teams in that span.

The Vikings are now led up front by Brian O'Neill, a 2018 second-rounder who has developed into one of the game's better right tackles.

"You might have a few more pointers for the young guys," O'Neill said of his role after the departure of Riley Reiff. "But at the end of the day, it's all about trying to progress myself and have the best season I possibly can and try to help lead this group the best way I can."

Garrett Bradbury will be back at center as the 2019 first-round pick enters his third season. He has progressed in each of his first two seasons but could be in line for a bigger jump in Year 3.

Ezra Cleveland is now at left guard after he started nine games at right guard as a rookie in 2020. A former second-rounder, Cleveland said he bulked up a bit this offseason to get prepared for the grind of being an interior offensive lineman.

Veterans Rashod Hill (left tackle) and Dakota Dozier (right guard) spent offseason practices with the first-team offense. And both would provide a veteran presence if asked to start this season.

But the Vikings also spent two draft picks on offensive linemen in the 2021 NFL Draft, including the No. 23 selection on left tackle Christian Darrisaw.

The former Virginia Tech standout offers size (6-foot-5 and 323 pounds) and athleticism, and he is viewed as Minnesota's left Former Ohio State right guard Wyatt Davis, a two-time All-American, could also vie for a starting spot as a rookie. He is listed at 6-4 and 326 pounds, and he brings needed size up front.

There is solid depth behind that group, including fourth-year veteran Mason Cole, whom the Vikings traded for this spring. He had 32 career starts at center and guard with Arizona over the past three seasons.

Others such as Olisaemeka Udoh, Dru Samia, Blake Brandel and Kyle Hinton are younger linemen who could provide depth this season.

Vikings Re-Sign Offensive Tackle Rashod Hill on One-Year Deal

The Vikings are bringing back their swing tackle in Hill, who could potentially have a chance to start.

The Vikings are bringing back swing tackle Rashod Hill on a fully guaranteed one-year deal, according to his agent Brent Tessler. Hill apparently had offers from other teams but chose to return to Minnesota.

Happy to announce that my client Rashod Hill (OT, Southern Miss) will be returning to the Minnesota Vikings on a 1-year fully guaranteed contract despite multiple offers elsewhere.

2021 will be the sixth season with the Vikings for the 29-year-old Hill. After going undrafted out of Southern Miss, he began his career with the Jaguars but was poached off their practice squad by the Vikings during his rookie year.

Hill has been a reliable swing tackle during his time in Minnesota. He has made 17 career starts on both sides of the offensive line while also playing on special teams. The 6'6" Hill has great size and is a solid pass protector who is limited a bit by a lack of mobility.

In 2017, his first full season with the Vikings, Hill started seven games (mostly at right tackle) and played well. He allowed one sack and 19 pressures that year on 323 pass blocking snaps. The following year, Hill started eight games, splitting time pretty evenly between right and left tackle. He struggled more that season, allowing five sacks and 28 pressures.

Over the past two seasons, with Riley Reiff and Brian O'Neill not missing much time, Hill has only played a total of 270 snaps with two Week 17 starts. He's been solid during those limited reps, allowing no sacks and finishing with a PFF grade above 70 in both years.

during those limited reps, allowing no sacks and finishing with a PFF grade above 70 in both years.

It's possible that the Vikings could give Hill a chance to compete for a starting tackle job in 2021, depending on what else they do to address the offensive line in free agency and the draft. Maybe he's a bridge to Ezra Cleveland or a rookie opposite O'Neill. Choosing to return to Minnesota over other offers could indicate that he thinks he has a chance to start. If not, he'll continue to be one of the better swing tackles in the league and will stay ready to step in if either starting tackle has to miss time.

This one-year deal allows Hill to become a free agent again next offseason, when the salary cap is expected to bounce back.

Thanks for reading. Make sure to bookmark this site and check back daily for the latest Vikings news and analysis all offseason long. Also, follow me on Twitter and feel free to ask me any questions on there.

What If Rashod Hill Is Viable?

By Luke Braun - April 8, 2021

When you're a Minnesota Vikings fan, you get to participate in the annual spring tradition of talking yourself into middling-to-bad offensive linemen. They struck out on some interior offensive line names they were after, and now the draft is looming. Edge rusher might be the choice in the first round, leaving a giant vacancy in Riley Reiff's place. If the Vikings played tomorrow, Rashod Hill would likely start.

Earlier in the season, Matthew Collier penned a feature on Hill, who almost started last year. As Reiff considered his options regarding an August pay-cut, the Vikings had Hill waiting in the wings. Reiff chose to stay in Minnesota, and Hill saw limited action in his fifth NFL season. That limited action may have displayed some of the improvements that Collier highlighted in his piece.

Hill is known as a solid backup tackle, but not one you want starting. In 2018, he started eight games before being overtaken by Brian O'Neill after their loss to the New Orleans Saints. That stretch wasn't amazing, giving up 21 pressures on "true pass sets" (i.e., standard drop-back situations) before his benching. For context, T.J. Clemmings gave up 25 pressures in the first eight games of his infamous 2016 campaign.

But it's been three years since that stretch, and it mostly informs our current opinions. But what if he's gotten better? As fans, we can't really know one way or another. Even the Vikings have limited information to go off of. Obviously, if Hill has improved to starting quality, it would be a massive boon. But if he were simply a viable low-end starter, would it open up any options that would otherwise be unavailable?

The options available to the Vikings are more open than they usually are three weeks before the draft. They could draft a tackle like Rashawn Slater or trade up for Penei Sewell. They could bring in a proven free agent like Alejandro Villanueva or Russell Okung. Those options exist with or without Hill.

If Hill isn't a viable part-time starter, the idea of camp competition is not very

If Hill isn't a viable part-time starter, the idea of camp competition is not very enticing. Two backups competing in training camp do not manufacture a starter, as the Vikings have learned so often. But if Hill works as a worst-case scenario, the Vikings could bring in a high-ceiling, low-floor offensive tackle to compete with him. If that player works out, great. In the event he doesn't, Hill is the fallback. A fallback is a step above a career backup, so we have to trust that Hill has improved a little.

We'll get back to Hill. For now, assuming he has improved, who would those options be? The Vikings have been linked to Eric Fisher, for one. Fisher is coming off of an Achilles injury that will jeopardize his Week 1 availability. A whole season of Hill is a lot to ask, but what about just a few games while one of the top tackles in the league gets up to speed?

The Vikings could challenge the injury bug in the draft too. Someone like Stanford's Walker Little, who lost his final college season to an ACL injury, becomes a more acceptable risk if Hill can provide a backstop. Or someone like James Hudson out of Cincinnati who needs time to develop. Hill can tide them over in the meantime.

So is Hill even good enough to justify those strategies? In 2018, he wasn't. The Vikings' line struggled mightily during the first half of their 8-7-1 2018 campaign, and Hill was a big part of that. Having to wait through that for O'Neill to come along may have been the difference between the playoffs and middling futility for that team.

Here are some lowlights from that stretch:

[videopress qrkp10d1]

There are many technical issues in that cutup, but soft hands are the ones that stick out to me most. When his hands go out, it's easy for players like Chandler Jones and Brandon Graham to swat them away or bull rush through them. He also didn't get a lot of depth on his kick-steps. That means edge rushers were getting upfield faster than he did, and his only option was a desperation lunge.

Last year Hill played about half of the Week 14 game against the Tampa Bay Buccaneers. Much of that was as a sixth lineman on heavy sets, but he did replace O'Neill for a brief spell while he was injured. That went much better; here's a cutup:

[videopress QXIMsvh6]

In particular, his footwork is much cleaner. Tackles need to both move upfield while also keeping their legs under them since edge rushers can attack them at any time. In the first sack, Hill picks up his feet way too much and doesn't have a strong base when Brandon Graham engages. In the second, his base is as stout as can be when Shaq Barrett engages, and his length can be leveraged to its full potential.

[videopress L8Y6NH5y]

That said, it's probably unwise for the Vikings to hang their hat on this. If they do, and Hill reverts to old habits, it could mean even further retrogression from an already ailing unit. It's still probably better to shell out for someone like Villanueva or bite the bullet and address the offensive line in the first round again. Even better, they could sign a guard like Lane Taylor or Trai Turner and kick Ezra Cleveland to the outside where he belongs.

If those ideas fall through, and the Vikings end up relying on Hill temporarily at tackle, there is a chance that he's a better player than he was in 2018. The sample of Hill last year was small, so we can only be so excited about a possible improvement. But if his footwork really is that much cleaner, the Vikings' patient investment in him may pay off. Even if he doesn't blossom into a full-time starter, he could justify a risk in someone like Fisher that outputs an even greater reward.

HATTIESBURG, Miss. – Thirteen former Southern Miss football players report to National Football League training camps this month.

There is one rookie among the former Golden Eagle group, wide receiver Tim Jones, who signed as a free agent last spring and looks to make the season-opening roster with the Jacksonville Jaguars.

Twelve different squads currently hold a Southern Miss player on its roster with the Philadelphia Eagles (Nick Mullens, Quez Watkins) having a pair of former Golden Eagles.

Here is a look at the entire list of Southern Miss players heading into camp with a roster spot:

Player	Team	Training Camp Site
Cornell Armstrong	Houston Texans	Houston Methodist Training Facility	7
Jamie Collins, Sr.	Detroit Lions	Detroit Lions Training Facility	7
De'Michael Harris	Indianapolis Colts	Grand Park (Westfield, Ind.)	7

Christian Darrisaw has returned to practice, but Vikings say Rashod Hill is 'our guy' at left tackle

Hill started the first three games at the spot, but is ranked just No. 72 out of 74 NFL tackles by Pro Football Focus.

As far as offensive coordinator Klint Kubiak is concerned, there's no controversy at left tackle for the Minnesota Vikings.

Rashod Hill started the first three games at the spot, but is ranked just No. 72 out of 74 NFL tackles by Pro Football Focus. Rookie Christian Darrisaw, who had been the favorite to start at left tackle before being hampered by a groin injury, has been a full-time participant in practice this week for the first time this season. But Kubiak said Hill will remain the starter entering Sunday's game against Cleveland at U.S. Bank Stadium.

“Rashod’s our guy,” Kubiak said before Thursday’s practice. “Good to have Christian back at practice, he’s getting better. He’s only had a few days, we have to build him up and do it the right way. Really pleased with his progression.”

Darrisaw, taken with the No. 23 pick in the first round, missed the first week of training camp and after a week of practices he was sidelined due to having a medical procedure on Aug. 12. Darrisaw returned to practice on Sept. 6 on a limited basis before being a full participant in practices Wednesday and Thursday.

“He’s got a lot of catching up to do,” Kubiak said Darrisaw. “He’s doing a heck of a job with everything he can control.”

Crowd makes difference

Vikings linebacker Eric Kendricks said having a loud home crowd made “100 percent” of a difference in a 30-17 home win last Sunday over Seattle.

After there were no fans at U.S. Bank Stadium in 2020 due to the coronavirus pandemic, the Vikings had their first regular-season game with fans in the home opener against the Seahawks. That was the first of three straight games at home.

“It makes things a little bit harder for the quarterbacks to communicate,” Kendricks said of having a loud home crowd back. “It makes it harder for them to hear our adjustments, our play calls and stuff like that. Last year, often times you’d have a quarterback listening to exactly what we’re saying and make adjustments based on that, so it was kind of unfair in that way. Now, homefield advantage is real. We’ve got to take advantage of that.”

and make adjustments based on that, so it was kind of unfair in that way. Now, homefield advantage is real. We've got to take advantage of that, especially with our crowd."

Ex-LSU stars battle

Vikings star receiver Justin Jefferson is good friends with Browns star receiver Odell Beckham Jr. Jefferson played at LSU from 2017-19 and Beckham was at the school from 2011-13, which included being teammates with Jefferson's brother, quarterback Jordan Jefferson.

"I know Odell really well," Jefferson said. "We're like brothers. We never trained together, but we were always just close, hung out together plenty of times. Definitely chopped it up a lot of times."

Jefferson, 22, said he grew up admiring Beckham, 28.

"I was always watching him during games and practices, whenever, so I definitely was a big fan of him growing up," he said.

One of the main themes of Minnesota Vikings preseason and training camp is that the team is full of good players but lacks the depth to sustain too many injuries.

Following the preseason finale against the Kansas City Chiefs, head coach Mike Zimmer preciently said that the team was going to be in trouble if the wrong players got hurt. Whether he knew it at the time or not, it turns out that one of the wrong players got hurt that night. Tight end Irv Smith Jr. was lost for the season due to meniscus surgery after suffering an injury on one of the 10 snaps he took against KC.

Now the Vikings are turning to Tyler Conklin, a 2018 fifth-round pick who has 32 career receptions. They also traded a fourth-round pick for Jets tight end Chris Herndon. He fell out of favor with New York after a solid rookie season in 2018 in which he gained over 500 yards.

The ironic part is that despite the very unfortunate injury to Smith, tight end is one of the few positions in which the Vikings have a player that can be mildly trusted in relief.

be mildly trusted in relief.

For example, if a cornerback gets hurt, the next man up is a seventh-rounder who gave up a 121 QB rating into his coverage last year. If a safety goes down, a converted corner with zero experience is on deck. If the QB misses a game, welcome back Sean Mannion (or welcome to the NFL Kellen Mond). If a receiver goes out, we'll see if Dede Westbrook's repaired ACL is ready to go. If a tackle goes down -- at least until Christian Darrisaw returns -- it's up to 2020 sixth-rounder Blake Brandel.

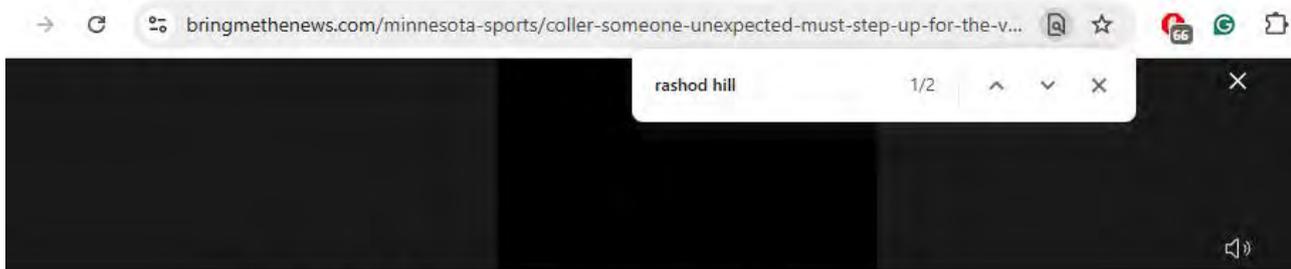

The NFL is full of teams that would be out of luck if their top players got hurt but the Vikings have seen much better depth days. In 2017, Brain Robison, Anthony Harris, Latavius Murray, Jerick McKinnon, Case Keenum, Jarius Wright and Rashod Hill started the year as backups. All of them were needed in order for the Vikings to reach the NFC Championship game.

There's no chance the Vikings go the rest of the season without having another starter go down, at least for some amount of time. That means that somebody will be called upon to step up.

If we look at the list of 2017 key fill-in players, there's a handful there who we didn't know were capable of holding down a role. Anthony Harris had been largely a special teamer and Rashod Hill, who played over 700 snaps in 2017, was an undrafted pickup off the Jaguars' practice squad in 2016. He ultimately took on Cameron Jordan in the Minneapolis Miracle game.

So who is that going to be for the 2021 Vikings?

So who is that going to be for the 2021 Vikings?

There are some candidates. The first of which is second-year defensive end DJ Wonnum.

Wonnum, a fourth-round pick in 2020, saw more work than expected last year, seeing 471 snaps. He picked up three sacks and 22 pressures along the way but very much looked like a rookie. Now, even with the signing of Everson Griffen, Wonnum will have to step up in some capacity, whether that's starting and playing every down or being moved around in a situational role.

"I think he just gets better and better every day," co-defensive coordinator Andre Patterson said of Wonnum. "He's hungry. He wants to be really good. I think the biggest thing with DJ is that DJ's a playmaker and all three preseason games he made plays."

At receiver the Vikings may need to find something in either KJ Osborn or Ihmir Smith-Marsette. With Smith Jr. down, Zimmer mentioned using more three-receiver personnel groupings. If Westbrook isn't ready to step in Week 1 following a training camp in which he barely practiced, the two recent fifth-rounders will need to offer some threat.

Osborn shined in practice at times and Smith-Marsette showed some playmaking ability but neither was given much chance with poor quarterback play to stand out in the preseason.

And somebody needs to return punts effectively. The Vikings averaged 4.3 yards per return last year, dead last in the NFL.

Someone in the secondary will be called upon at some point. Whether that's Kris Boyd, who had a strong enough camp to take over the backup CB spot from Cam Dantzler, or rookie safety Cam Bynum. At linebacker Blake Lynch may have to play a vital role if Anthony Barr's injury is a sustained Lynch may have to play a vital role if Anthony Barr's injury is a sustained issue. Rookie guard Wyatt Davis may have to step in if there's an absence at guard.

At backup quarterback the Vikings decided to roll the dice with a third-round rookie and undrafted practice squad QB behind Kirk Cousins. They found themselves hunting at the last minute for another player who could handle the offense in a pinch in Mannion. While Cousins has a clean bill of health for six years running, we can never anticipate when an unfortunate break will happen or someone will end up on the COVID list. At some point, the career backup might have to be called upon.

Of course, we can't anticipate which depth players will end up getting the call but we can say that the best seasons have often been those in which the Vikings got strong performances from players who weren't expected to contribute Week 1. That will need to happen at some point in order for the 2021 Vikings to maximize their potential.

While Darrisaw works his way back, the Vikings will rely on Rashod Hill at left tackle. Hill started the first eight games of the 2018 season at right tackle but has been in a reserve role the past two years.

Although he allowed four pressures in his Week 17 start against the Detroit Lions last season, Zimmer was positive about his pass blocking and improvement in the running game.

It will be Hill's pass blocking that will be tested against the Cincinnati Bengals, after their offseason acquisition of Trey Hendrickson.

Vikings are slated to start Rashod Hill at LT in week one vs the Bengals.

Hill was a former UDFA. 29 years old in his 6th season in the NFL. He's played just 271 snaps the past two years as a reserve (one game, week 17, at LT last year).

Hendrickson was a free-agent target for the Vikings last season after collecting 14.5 sacks with the New Orleans Saints. He also ranked third among qualifying edge defenders with a 9.2 pass rusher productivity rating according to Pro Football Focus.

With similar matchups coming against Chandler Jones and J.J. Watt in Week 2, Hill's performance could determine whether the Vikings get off to a fast start in 2021. But it didn't dampen Zimmer's outlook on the offensive line.

"I don't necessarily think it's a work in progress," Zimmer said. "I think there's some unknowns there...but I don't think it's a major concern."

GAME SUMMARY

The Minnesota Vikings (7-9 in 2020) open the 2021 regular season against the Cincinnati Bengals (4-11-1) with kickoff set for noon at Paul Brown Stadium. Minnesota will play the season opener on the road for the first time since 2016. The contest also marks the first time in franchise history the Vikings have played Cincinnati to open the schedule.

Minnesota last played at Cincinnati in 2013 when Vikings Head Coach Mike Zimmer served as defensive coordinator for the Bengals. Overall, Minnesota is 5-2 in season-opening games during the Mike Zimmer era (2014-present) and is 4-1 in the past five season openers. The Vikings are also 2-1 under Zimmer in Week 1 road games.

The Vikings offense features a similar look at the skill positions in 2021, with QB Kirk Cousins, RB Dalvin Cook, WR Justin Jefferson and WR Adam Thielen all returning. Klint Kubiak will take over the play calling responsibility for the first time, serving as the team's offensive coordinator.

The defense welcomes six new starters - DT Michael Pierce, DT Dalvin Tomlinson, LB Nick Vigil, CB Patrick Peterson, CB Bashaud Breeland and S Xavier Woods - and returns three Pro Bowlers from injuries - DE Danielle Hunter, LB Eric Kendricks and LB Anthony Barr. The new-look Vikings secondary, featuring Peterson, Breeland, S Harrison Smith and Woods, have a combined 419 games started. Smith is the only returning Viking in that secondary and recently inked a long-term contract extension with the club.

STAT OF THE WEEK

Since 2015, Kirk Cousins is the only quarterback in the NFL to record at least 3,500 passing yards and 25 or more touchdowns in six consecutive seasons. QB Tom Brady and QB Aaron Rodgers are the next on that list, throwing for 3,500+ passing yards and 25 or more touchdowns in five of six seasons.

The Minnesota Vikings will get some reinforcements on Sunday as Dalvin Cook and Christian Darrisaw are expected to play against the Browns after being listed as questionable on the team's injury report.

Cook missed last week's win over the Seahawks with an ankle injury but was a limited participant in practice. When speaking to reporters on Wednesday, Cook estimated his ankle was in the "90th percentile" but it appears he'll play barring a setback in pre-game warmups per ESPN's Adam Schefter.

The Vikings have a different plan with Darrisaw, who will get some work with the field goal unit according to NFL Network's Tom Pelissero. The first-round pick has been out since August after groin surgery but was a full participant in practice this week.

When asked about the possibility of Darrisaw starting in place of Rashod Hill, Klint Kubiak said "Rashod's our guy" and the Vikings want to "build [Darrisaw] up the right way."

The Vikings will kick off against the Browns at noon on Sunday.

Vikings OT Rashod Hill has been a pretty important depth player for the team over the years. This season, Hill started the first five games at left tackle.

Hill started the first five games at left tackle.

This week against the Panthers, Christian Darrisaw made his first NFL start, leaving Rashod Hill out of a starting spot.

Hill faced another setback when he went down in the Carolina game with a knee injury. He suffered the injury while playing on the field goal unit.

However, the Vikings announced that the swing tackle is probable to return to the Week 6 game.

Hill's presence isn't as crucial with Darrisaw fully healthy now. Although, Hill can still serve as an option on special teams. He has versatility as a reserve offensive lineman.

Hill has a PFF grade of 39.9 so far. Darrisaw has a PFF grade of 60, though Darrisaw has played a lot fewer snaps.

Vikings Hope to Avoid Dreadful News on Latest Injury Report

 Dustin Baker | Nov 17, 2021

 Justin O'Neill Dalvin Cook

Not only will the franchise be without Danielle Hunter (pectoral muscle), Michael Pierce (elbow), Irv Smith Jr. (meniscus), and maybe Anthony Barr versus the Green Bay Packers on Sunday, the Vikings could be without several other players if the worst-case scenario plays out.

if the worst-case scenario plays out.

News hit the wire on Wednesday that Brian O'Neill, Greg Joseph, D.J. Wonnum, Mackensie Alexander, and Chris Herndon were absent from practice.

The working theory is these absences were COVID-related, although potentially false-positive tests.

The loss of O'Neill would be a significant hindrance in any game for Minnesota. But without the left tackle against the Packers [of all teams], the pain would feel all the more sharpened.

In theoretical relief of O'Neill, the Vikings would turn to Rashod Hill, who struggled during his starting gig at the beginning of 2021. Hill was eventually replaced by rookie Christian Darrisaw.

The Chiefs Fall While Allen Gets the Call

And this is all with an offensive line that isn't particularly competent with pass protection regardless.

A Joseph non-appearance would be weird because the Vikings would either have to sign a free-agent kicker — or not kick field goals and extra points. Overcoming a Wonnum absence is less painful because Minnesota has a little bit of EDGE rusher depth. Life without Mackensie would be rough, but the Vikings do have practice-squad corners to stop the bleeding. And then tight end depth isn't too dreadful for the Herndon inclusion on the list.

The Vikings would still need to find a pathway to victory against Green Bay as the team sits at 4-5 through 10 weeks — just one-half game out of the NFC playoff picture.

More details — whether those five players have the coronavirus or not — should be available on Thursday or Friday.

The Packers are favored to win over the Vikings by 2.5 points at U.S. Bank Stadium this weekend.

NEEDS: The defense again has significant holes at all three levels, as new coach Kevin O'Connell takes over and veteran defensive coordinator Ed Donatell installs a new system for a unit that gave up the third-most yards and ninth-most points in the NFL last season. Eight of their 14 most-used defensive players in 2021 were signed as free agents just last year, and of those only DT Dalvin Tomlinson is still under contract for 2022. The most pressing need is again at CB, with Cameron Dantzler (17 career games started) currently the most experienced player at the position. Peterson and Barr would be difficult to replace but just as tricky to afford given the team's tight salary-cap situation. The greatest need on offense is at right guard, but affording a proven starter in free agency would be a challenge.

AVAILABLE SALARY CAP SPACE (approximately): $2.4 million over.

2023 Pro Football Showcase for SECOND SEASON Pro Football Game

Last year, in a blog post on PLAAVClassic.com, we outlined what football fans want in an alternative, spring-time pro football league. We called it the "Pro Football Showcase," and it proved to be our most-downloaded freebie of the year! We're bringing it back for year two...

The Pro Football Showcase is a fan-friendly, month-long extension of the football season. History has shown that fans DO show up to an alternate league's first couple of weekends of play, with generally strong, sometimes impressive attendance figures. Call it novelty, call it habit, call it whatever, fact is, people have demonstrated a willingness to continue to watch pro football games after the Super Bowl is in the books. For awhile anyway. Once the baseball season begins and hockey and basketball playoffs, there's increased competition for the sports dollar/viewing and attendance at spring football games naturally fades. It fades even faster when the football product is minor-league caliber. But history has shown that for a month or so after the Super Bowl, there IS an appetite for more pro football.

So, the PFS gives pro football fans exactly what they want: a month-long extension of the football season featuring recognizable, talented players, splashy uniforms, exciting games with innovative rules. Plus it provides bonus wagering and fantasy elements, and, in the spirit of "leave 'em wanting more," almost as quickly as it appears, it's over. Not only is this the perfect scenario for fans, it's also perfect for TV networks, which have routinely seen solid ratings for spring football, but only for a few weeks. The networks get the benefit of the novelty and curiosity factor, without committing to televising extended weeks of football games with ever-shrinking audiences.

It also provides a valuable launching pad (or, in many cases, the opportunity to re-launch) for players wanting a shot at playing pro ball. That includes solid veteran players squeezed out of the league by salary cap restraints, young players who've tasted pro training camp and want another shot, and even college players who want to elevate their status in the upcoming pro draft and believe enough in their abilities to take a chance on themselves (we've expanded this category for 2023, more on this shortly).

Our original blog post cast the full vision for the showcase concept, you can refer back to it if you missed it the first time around. From here, let's outline the evolution of the concept as we launch the showcase's second season. As part of this package you'll find the eight 2023 Pro Football Showcase teams. All of these are real players, you'll undoubtedly recognize many of them. For 2023, we've expanded the concept to include likely first-round draft choices--last year, we presumed that most of them would be unwilling to risk their draft status by playing in a showcase arrangement. We'll circumvent that by saying that top-tier players get a million dollar paycheck instead of $100,000 and a lucrative insurance policy covering both diminished draft status due to poor performance or injury.

We've also expanded the number of college stars for this set--the 2022 showcase featured about five dozen college stars, this year's showcase has three times that many. These are players who are eligible to be chosen in the upcoming NFL draft. Indeed, whereas last year players with NFL experience out-numbered college prospects, this year it's the other way around. It's kind of like an expanded Senior Bowl, with eight teams instead of two, each team peppered with "mentor" players with actual pro experience! Players with pro experience are marked with a star symbol after their name.

Once again, you'll notice is that there are no player run/pass ratings. That is by design, and will, I think, make for a strongly compelling tabletop football project, one in which everyone's experience is different. The player ratings will be generated by the SECOND SEASON game engine, as you play. It will be completely open-ended--just as if you were watching the showcase unfold before your eyes on TV.

We use the decider die to accomplish this. That is to say, when you roll a result in the Second Season game book and it asks if the player is rated "2," or "0," you'll roll the decider die. If it's "yes," you'll pencil in that rating for the player for whatever play was called, run or pass. If "no," you'll pencil in a rating of "1" for that player for whatever play was called, run or pass. After the initial call, when a player gets called on again, he'll use whatever rating the decider die generated.

In some situations, the game book will bring into play two players--for example, it might ask if players A or C are rated 2/pass. In these cases, you'll roll the decider die. If both players are un-rated, on a "yes" decider result ONE of the players will get the 2/pass rating. You can decide arbitrarily, or roll the decider again. The other player will remain un-rated. On a "no" decider roll, BOTH players are given a 1/pass rating.

As you continue to play, the ratings will create themselves, team identities will emerge and players will establish themselves as stars, scrubs, or somewhere in between. Reserve player ratings can also be established, by replacing starters. If a starter generates a poor rating though game play, you can start the reserve the next game and, using the same NO/YES process, see if he becomes a better performer.

New for the 2023 showcase, we're assigning scrimmage grades randomly as well, using the profile assignor included with this package. You'll roll two dice for each player, black and white, and the resulting dice roll will determine that player's scrimmage grades. We suggest that the grades remain in effect for the entire showcase.

We're also including the "coach 'em up" idea we created for last year's showcase. After each game, the each team is given two (or, three) "coach 'em up" dice rolls, which can improve or in some cases reduce a player's rating in a specific aspect of the game. If you like, you can also conduct a "coach 'em up" scrimmage grade re-roll for your one or two players per team.

Here are the teams and sponsors for the 2023 Pro Football Showcase (team sponsors in parentheses), we've kept the same teams and schedule as last year...

The screenshot shows the Spotrac website interface. At the top, there is a search bar and navigation links for various sports leagues (NFL, NBA, MLB, NHL, WNBA, EPL, MLS, NWSL, GOLF). Below this is a red navigation bar with options like 'TEAMS', 'TEAM RANKINGS', 'PLAYER RANKINGS', 'CONTRACTS', 'FREE AGENTS', 'OFFSEASON', and 'DRAFT'. The main content area features a player profile for Rashod Hill, a Washington Commanders Guard. The profile includes his age (33y-0m-30d), country (US), college (Southern Mississippi), and draft information (Undrafted, JAX, 2016). Below the profile is a 'Contract Details' section with tabs for 'Career Earnings', 'Injuries', 'Transactions', and 'Statistics'. A large dark blue box indicates the player is 'INACTIVE'. At the bottom, there is a section for a 2021-2021 contract with the Minnesota Vikings, described as a 'PENDING-FREE-AGENT-EXTENSION'. On the right side, there is a 'FEATURED PLAYER NEWS' section with a photo of a player and a headline '2025 NFL Free Agency Primer'.
