RSV season. Adults- you are contagious up to 24 hours before you start showing symptoms! Please keep your mouths/breaths away from a baby's face, hands, and feet. Don't be the reason a baby is hospitalized (or dead) because the baby was "just so cute I had to kiss her!".

It's super awkward as a parent to have to tell someone (especially a family member or friend) to step away from your baby. It's also super difficult to stop someone from kissing your child after they're already going in for the kiss.

Don't be selfish. Don't kiss babies. It's not worth it.

Also, if you're sick, please stay home. What might be a "sinus infection" or "allergies" to you, could translate to a life-threatening illness for a baby.

Copied from Blake Offenberger but added a picture of our sweet Melina in respiratory distress at the PICU, which is full of babies with the exact same issues.

A screenshot of a Facebook post. The main image shows a young girl with long dark hair tied in a ponytail with a large orange sequined bow, and a baby, both sitting on a dark leather couch. They are both wearing matching purple t-shirts with a cartoon character (Bugs Bunny) on the front. The girl is wearing white sandals, and the baby is wearing white socks. The background shows a window with white blinds. The Facebook interface is visible, including the URL bar at the top, the post header with the name 'Yamillet Ramirez' and date 'October 23, 2024', and a list of comments from users like Clarisa Garza, Mary Bell Garcia, and Angie Polanco.

It's our turn to be parents of a NICU baby. No one is prepared for these experiences. We have to be strong, manage our emotions and do what we can for the recovery of our babies. We trust that baby will be fine and that this trained team will know how to care for him. The hardest thing is coming home without that baby, but with the peace that he will soon be home to his own little home.

We hug every parent who has lived this experience. 💙
